Area Denied 'Disaster' Aid

BY JERRY KRIEGER
Farm & Features Editor

The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration (FDAA) has declined to give snow removal funds to storm-clobbered counties in Michigan, although 11 counties will get limited assistance in plowing out roads that are still blocked.

The FDAA turned down a request of Governor Milliken for 11 counties, including Van Buren, Allegan and Cass counties in southwestern Michigan, to be declared a snow Disaster Area. Instead, it offered Emergency Assistance, under which only roads that are still blocked can be opened by snow equipment hired directly by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Meanwhile, Berrien county recorded a death which the sheriff's substation at Galien said appeared to be related to snow shoveling.

Donald Sherman, 47, Route 1, Buffalo road, Galien, was pronounced dead on arrival at Pawating hospital, Niles shortly after 4 p.m. Sunday. His wife, Lorina, told officers from the Galien substation the victim came into the house short of breath after shoveling snow at his home. Officers said Sherman may have suffered a heart attack, but that no official determination had been by a medical examiner yet this morning.

Virtually all schools in southwestern Michigan resumed classes this morning. The only two K-12 systems reported still closed today were Marcellus in Cass county and Bloomingdale in Van Buren county.

After several days of confusion over a federal emergency assistance declaration for 11 counties in the state, its meaning today turned out to be considerably short of what area county officials had been hoping.

Under the Emergency Assistance declaration by the FDAA, the Corps of Engineers over the weekend sent representatives to Van Buren, Allegan and Cass counties, along with eight other counties in the state. The Engineer representatives were authorized to hire privately owned snow removal equipment to break open roads that were still plugged. Under the Emergency Assistance program, there is no provision to render aid in clearing the many miles of roads that are still at one-lane widths.

Paul Kaiser, engineer-manager of the Van Buren Road commission, said Van Buren had 70 miles of back roads that were still plugged. But these roads have no homes along them, according to Kaiser.

"Our big worry is the some 700 miles of roads that have one-lane of travel open. Another good snow, and we will really be in trouble on these roads," Kaiser said. He added the Corps of Engineers was not authorized to assist with the big job of opening the one-laned roads.

Tom Webb, engineer-manager for the Berrien Road commission, reiterated that it is the many miles of roads still open to only one-lane of traffic that has officials crossing their fingers against another storm. Berrien still had 594 miles of one-lane roads and another 1,000 miles still in need of shoulder widening as of Sunday.

Berrien county was not among the 11 counties offered Emergency Assistance with clearing blocked roads. Berrien had only

NANCY GIZA
Miss Galien

DONNA MAGNER

These three southwestern Michigan high school students were crowned queens in their home communities over weekend. Roxanne Lee Feltner, 18, Coloma high school senior, was chosen Miss Coloma 1977, and will also reign as queen of community's Gladiolus festival in August by virtue of her win in Coloma contest. She was picked Saturday night as was Donna Jean Magner who reigns as Miss Edwardsburg 1977. Miss Magner, 17, is senior at Edwardsburg high school. Chosen in contest Sunday was Miss Galien 1977, Nancy Giza, 17, a Galien high school senior.

'Astronomical' Gas Profits Seen

By JOHN BRONSON
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Natural gas distributors may reap up to 100 per cent increases in first-quarter profits because of this winter's bitter cold, say utility officials and investment analysts.

But they say a call-to-arms by outraged consumers would be premature because the profit bulge is likely to disappear amid shortages later in the year.

"Profits will be astronomical," said a spokesman for the Buffalo, N.Y.-based National Fuel Gas Co., which serves 865,000 customers in Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio. "But the main reason for that is because we're selling most of our gas in the first quarter."

Foster Corwith, a natural gas specialist for Standard and Poor's investment service, said he expects some companies to report first-quarter profit increases of 100 per cent over last year.

H.A. Offutt, treasurer for fourth-ranked Consolidated Natural Gas Co. of Wilmington, Del., said his firm is now pulling gas out of storage that normally would not have been used until March.

"Sure, we're selling more gas now, and we're going to make profits on it, but unless we can find additional supplies for the last three quarters we're going to be losing then," he said.

These developments have not been lost on investors. Prices for natural gas stocks began a *steady rise when it became ap*parent the unusually cold winter would mean increased gas sales and profits.

For example, while Standard and Poor's index, which measures the activity of 500 stocks, changed little from Dec. 1 to Jan. 26, the index for natural gas distributors' stocks jumped from 77.26 to 87.13.

But Corwith said utility stocks may have peaked because investors are already looking ahead to what will probably be a more normal winter next year. "This is a one-time spurt. It's not the type of growth that can be sustained," he said.

Not only are utilities selling more gas, they're selling more of it now to their most profitable customers — residential users.

According to Standard and Poor's, the average rate for residential users over the 12-month period ending September 1976 was $1.91 per million British thermal units. For industrial customers, the rate was $1.22 per million BTUs.

Because of the freeze that has hit the eastern half of the country, gas deliveries to thousands of industrial users have been curtailed to provide enough gas for home use.

The expected profits have some company officials concerned about a potential public relations problem if consumers think they were gouged in a time of national hardship.

Recently, Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp criticized gas producers, saying he believes they are using the bitter cold as an excuse to "blackjack" the public into paying higher prices.

"We have our work cut out for us," Offutt said, adding that gas distributor earnings over the past five years have been depressed because of winters that have been warmer than normal. That fact will probably make the quarter's profits look even more inflated, he said.

Blacks Slay Missionaries

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Black guerrillas murdered seven white Roman Catholic missionaries, four of them nuns, in an attack Sunday night on a mission 36 miles north of Salisbury, a church spokesman said today.

The victims included three Britons, three West Germans and an Irishman, church officials said.

Archbishop Patrick Chakaipa, Rhodesia's first black Catholic archbishop, condemned the attack, saying those responsible "make mockery of whatever good ideals they claim to serve."

A church spokesman said the guerrillas rounded up eight white members of the Musami mission staff and shot them. Two Jesuit priests, a Jesuit lay brother and four Dominican nuns were slain, and a fourth Jesuit was wounded, but not seriously, the spokesman said.

Two of the priests and one of the nuns were British, the other three nuns were Germans and the Jesuit brother was Irish, church officials reported.

The mission staff also included another white brother and another white nun. The spokesman said it was not known where they were at the time of the attack, but they were thought to be safe.

The attack was the most serious against the missionary community during the four-year guerrilla war to end white rule in Rhodesia. On Dec. 5, a lone guerrilla killed a retired Catholic bishop, a priest and a nun after stopping their car in western Rhodesia and demanding money. Another nun was wounded but escaped by pretending to have been killed.

The Roman Catholic church has been a frequent critic of Prime Minister Ian Smith's white-minority government and has accused the security forces of atrocities against black guerrillas taken prisoner.

Bishop Chakaipa said those killed at Musami were "friends and servants of the African people.

President Asks For Buck Sign

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Harry S. Truman's well-known sign, "The buck stops here," is returning to the White House at the request of President Carter. Last week a White House staff member telephoned the Truman Library to ask if Carter could borrow the sign, and Dr. Benedict Zobrist, library director, agreed to send it this week. A replica of the small wooden sign will be used at the library until the original is returned, Zobrist said. The last time the White House asked for anything of value from the library was two years ago when Gerald R. Ford borrowed a painting of Truman to hang in the Cabinet Room. The picture is still in Washington, Zobrist said.

Germans To Send U.S. Aid

BERLIN (AP)—The West Berlin campaign to aid Americans suffering from the winter hardship raised $225,000 in three days, a Red Cross spokeswoman said today.

She said the total donated through Friday of last week included $80,000 from West Berlin and about $145,000 from the rest of West Germany.

"The response has been very positive," the spokeswoman said. Most of the money so far apparently had come from small donors.

The campaign was launched last Tuesday by West Berlin City Assembly President Peter Lorenz as a gesture of solidarity with the American people who repeatedly have aided West Berlin in its times of need.

Originally, Lorenz had appealed only to West Berlin's two million people but the drive spread to the whole of West Germany.

The Red Cross spokeswoman said the campaign would run at least two weeks and that the money would then be sent to the American Red Cross for distribution.

State Eyes $1 Million Computer Goof

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — What one state official called "the worst computer foul-up I've ever seen" may end up costing the state $1 million and could take two months to rectify. The computer system was supposed to reduce waste in Michigan's $32 million-a-year day-care program. But for the past three months, it has been on the blink — underpaying, overpaying, duplicating payments or making none at all to 17,000 day-care providers.

It could take two months to straighten out the problem and collect money from those who were overpaid, state officials believe. The overpayments, they estimate, total somewhere between $400,000 and $1.5 million. Fixing the computer system is like fighting a big pillow. "You punch it in the middle and it comes up on the sides," said Leland Hall, director of finance for the Department of Social Services (DSS).

He says the problem is not in the computer itself, but in how it is used. "At times, we don't know what we're doing with those beasts," he acknowledged, adding that in the past three months the number of kinks in the system has been reduced.

In the beginning, when the problems were first noticed, "We didn't know exactly what to do," he said. "It has taken a lot of time to figure out where the fixes needed to be applied." The computer system was intended to cut $2 million off the cost of the day-care program by having providers enter into a contract with the DSS and bill the department. The computer was supposed to review the billings to make sure they were correct.

Michigan Auditor General Albert Lee criticized the old daycare several years ago as giving providers too many duplicate payments. John Dempsey, director of the Michigan Department of Social Services, said the computer system should have been tested in selected counties before it went into statewide use in October.

Many of those who received extra money already have returned it, Dempsey said, but there is no accurate way to determine just who was overpaid — or how to get all the funds back. Dempsey blamed the foul-up on "inadequate planning done by many people on the assumption that the program would work."

Carter Tries First Shove Against Bureaucracy

Last week President Carter sent a bill to the House and Senate which would permit him, subject to a veto in either section of Congress, to abolish, consolidate or transfer functions within 1,250 agencies and commissions, many of whom are advisory in nature.

The bill is similar to the 1949 Reorganization Act adopted in the Truman Presidency as an answer to panky panky being perpetrated by some high placed officials within the old Bureau of Internal Revenue.

It lapsed in 1973.

Carter's bill drew a mixed reception.

Abe Ribicoff, chairman of the Senate Government Operations Comittee, introduced the bill before the White House had disclosed its content to the news media and promised to give it top priority.

In a separate chamber, Rep. Jack Brooks, D., Texas, chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, dug in his heels for a fight. Brook has his own version of reorganization. No shuffling could take effect without direct approval from both Houses within 60 days of its submission by the President.

The road block thrown up by the Honorable Brooks should allay any fear in a payroller's heart as to abrupt separation from the Washington pipeline.

Carter himself said his bill will not produce any firings, but only a potential reduction in employment caused by attrition. If somebody quits his job or dies with his boots on, a replacement may not be hired.

The bill is a timid start in the right direction.

Following are some samples of how far short it falls from the radical surgery which should have been performed 28 years ago when Truman played musical chairs in renaming the Bureau of Internal Revenue the Internal Revenue Service and redesigning its field offices.

It will not relieve private business or local governments from the mountain of paperwork they must report continually to Washington.

Our Friday edition featured a story of how the area's school districts are spending heavily in money and employee work time to file grading, course instruction, student and faculty racial mix reports with the U.S. Civil Rights Commission. Just to expand upon the subject, these reports have to be compiled school building by school building within a district.

The districts have to comply with this burden on pain of losing their federal aid.

Nor will Carter's bill get at the heart of the confusing manner in which Congress legislates and then assigns the enforcement responsibility of its mandates.

Welfare is an excellent of this planned confusion.

Social Security, a branch of HEW, administers medicare and medicaid.

Social Security also dispenses cash benefits to people mentally not adjusted to hold a job. They are not the type under treatment at the Riverview clinic, but they are the square pegs trying to fit into a round hole.

HEW from the topside dispenses Uncle Sam's assumed share of the cash grants to welfare recipients.

The Agricultural Department passes out food stamps.

Since poverty presumably is poverty, one would think a single agency could administer a uniform program for its alleviation.

That's not the way your government goes to work.

One hand on the throttle, by Washington's standard, is no control whatever.

Everyone should have a piece of the action.

Carter's bill purposefully avoids charging against the cabinet level multiplicity of administration as illustrated by HEW and Agriculture in the welfare field.

As the prospect appears at the moment, Jimmy will have his hands full in getting his limited program past the intractable Brooks.

Congressmen love to talk to their home folks about the danger of creeping bureaucratic paralysis.

When the chips are down, their attachment to pet projects is dedicated to the death to protect the bureaucracy.

Almost A Fifth Are Functional Illiterates

Modern education is beginning to face one of its worst scandals — the high school graduate who cannot function in society because he has not mastered even the fundamentals education is supposed to teach. Educators have coined a term for this unfortunate product of a derelict system — the functional illiterate.

Nearly everyone, from the businessman who is appalled at the lack of basic skills of job applicants to parents who feel their child has been cheated by the system, has his own horror tale to tell about the functional illiterates. The worst part of the scandal is that the problem has been ignored so long.

Test scores of 4,500 17-year-olds across the United States released by the National Assessment of Education Progress show 17 per cent to be functional illiterates. This means they cannot cope with such elementary challenges as a job application or a checkbook balance.

If that survey is representative, it could mean as many as 500,000 functional illiterates will receive their high school diplomas this year. Small wonder the educational system is being pressured to do something about it.

What to do? Some school districts have adopted tests or other means of measuring proficiency in arithmetic, reading, spelling and language usage. Diplomas are not given until the student passes the tests. That's not a bad start, but it still doesn't answer the question why a student can be advanced to graduation without mastering fifth or sixth-grade work.

CELCIUS PART OF INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM

Editor,

In an editorial in your January 31 issue, a question was raised as to why Celsius has replaced centigrade. A booklet, An Everyday Guide to the Metric System published by Science Research Associates, Inc., in cooperation with the Associated Press explains: "The Celsius used to be called 'centigrade' but the latter term was dropped to avoid confusion with the metric prefix 'centi' used to describe 1/100th of a unit and also to avoid use of the term 'grade' which could be confused with angles."

Division of a right angle into 100 equal parts, instead of 90, is used in some countries. Taking 1/100th of a grade (right angle) gives a centigrade (a grade). The National Weather Service, in using the term Celsius, is conforming to the International System of Units, called SI, which was established in 1960. It replaces all former versions of the metric system.

The above quotation is from the booklet, which is part of the Metric Kit offered in connection with your 10-part Metric Series.

Cindy Morris, a 1975 graduate of BHHS and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Morris, 942 Sierra Dr., had the following poem published in the Nov.-Dec. 1974 issue of THE METRIC NEWS, which disseminates information to business and industry.

If the squares of the legs
you are able to add
And function until the hypotenuse is begat.
Then Pythagorus decrees
There are 90 degrees.
But the system of metric says 100 grades.

Thomas and Marilyn Gilbert in their Thinking Metric say:08 Farewell, O fragile Fahrenheit,
Who kept us warm
each winter night.

The next to go may well be us,
So treat us kindly, Celsius.

When the media recently reported wind-chill factors of -40 below, they could have used either unit because that is the one reading where both scales are the same: -40°F equals -40°C. Metric or not, that is cold!

Sincerely,
Mary E. Reed

MORE INFORMATION ON BENTON PROGRAM

Editor,

Considering that most Benton township residents had only one day's notice of the first public hearing on a $838,000 third-year Community Development (CD) program, it is amazing that as many as 40 residents showed up on such short notice.

It is interesting to follow in the legal publication section of your newspaper, that some Berrien county committees give their citizens ample prior time and notice of upcoming public hearings, while others release publication just prior to the event.

I also wish to point out the following additional information that did not appear in The Herald-Palladium's story Feb. 2.

1. I questioned not only the omission of the Child Care Center and Senior Citizen Center funding, which the CDAC had recommended, but also the inclusion of $26,400 for Code Enforcement; when the CD department had received the 1-20-77 recommendation of the CDAC, not to include Code Enforcement.

2. Trustee Arnold Leonard questioned the omission of social funding also in his capacity as CDAC member, of which he is vice chairman.

3. Budget balance for year I and II totals $1,160,106.89, according to CD department figures.

4. Administration, planning and management budgets for year I were $194,400, and for year II were $115,200, and proposed budgets for year III are $113,900, making a total of $423,400 to administer a less than $3 million program. This is not the first time that I have objected to what I consider to be excessive administration costs, which your article seems to play down. I fail to see why you or your reporter could not have given a more concise account of this issue, particularly since you were furnished all pertinent data in print. May I suggest to those interested citizens a comparative study of Community

Baseball of high-caliber semi-pro variety will return to the twin city sports scene in 1952 after an absence of one year, it was learned today with the announcement by Waldo V. Tiscornia that the Auto Specialties Manufacturing company would field a team. Tiscornia, vice-president of Auto Specialties and owner of the team, known as the Ansens, ended much speculation among the local baseball populace with his revelation that beautiful Edgewater park would again house a team. After the close of the 1950 baseball season, and the collapse of the Michigan-Indiana league, of which the Ansens were members, Tiscornia decided not to field a club in 1951, marking the first time St. Joseph was without high caliber baseball.

Workmen this week were busily engaged in razing the frame building on Colfax avenue, which one day years ago stood on the southwest corner of Main and Pipestone. It was then the American House, one of the city's firs hotels. For years it was "the" hotel of the city. The old frame building was completed in 1862. It is part of the Michigan avenue "triangle."

He has recently perfected a device whereby he connects a common alarm clock with the furnace damper and at a certain hour in the night the dampers are adjusted and by morning the heat is on in fine shape. Mr. Walker's invention has been tested in a number of Benton Harbor homes and it is found to work admirably. Last summer Mr. Walker took a trip to Buffalo and was for several days a student at the electrical department having gained special permission before his arrival to be shown into every detail of that great structure that lighted the entire grounds.

Canal Carter's First Challenge

WASHINGTON — In the early days of his administration, President Carter appears to have grasped one painful lesson which his predecessor learned only in the heat of last year's campaign: the Panama Canal is first and foremost a domestic political challenge.

Accordingly, Carter is moving quickly and quietly to build public support for a new treaty with Panama and to defuse Congressional opposition to such a pact.

The issue is receiving "top priority" attention at both the White House and State Department, administration officials tell us.

The last thing the new president needs is a violent foreign policy crisis at the country's very doorstep — and such a blowup is almost inevitable unless a new and more equitable treaty is quickly concluded.

Carter has told Congressional leaders he hopes negotiations with Panama can be wrapped up by June. Panama's foreign minister, Aquilino Boyd, is in Washington this week to pin down the timetable and framework for completing the talks begun under Presidents Nixon and Ford.

But Carter is not devoting all his attention to diplomatic channels. He understands that a new treaty won't be worth the paper it's written on without public support and ratification by two-thirds of the U.S. Senate.

Last year, 37 senators — three more than the number who could block a new treaty — signed a resolution sponsored by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., calling for continued U.S. sovereignty over the Canal Zone and insisting upon prior approval by both the House and Senate of any new agreement with Panama.

A new version of the Thurmond resolution, essentially unchanged, is now in the works, but the Carter administration is wisely maneuvering to keep the number of co-sponsors well below the dangerous 34 mark. Eight of last year's signers retired or lost their seats in November, but several new members could take their places on the Thurmond resolution. The most outspoken freshman foe of a new treaty is the irrepressible Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., who said during his own campaign that the Panama Canal belongs to the U.S. because "we stole it fair and square."

According to Senate sources, Secretary Of State Cyrus Vance has already privately begun contacting a number of senators who signed the Thurmond resolution last year but may be willing to reconsider their stands. He and other Carter operatives will also work on most of the 18 new senators, these sources said.

Targeted for lobbying efforts are: Sens. Herman Talmadge and Sam Nunn, both Democrats from Carter's home state of Georgia; Russell Long and Bennett Johnston, both D-La.; Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va.; Thomas McIntyre, D-N.H.; Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C.; Wendell Ford, D-Ky; Pete Domenici, R-N.M.; Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla.; Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb.; Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.; H. John Heinz III, R-Pa.; John Danforth, R-Mo.; Harrison J. Schmitt, R-N.M., and Richard Lugar, R-Ind.

Conservatives fighting a new treaty are far from finished, however. Thurmond, five other members of Congress and a Canal Zone labor leader have filed suit in federal court in Washington seeking a judicial declaration that only the full Congress has the right to dispose of U.S. territory of property, and the case could throw a monkey wrench into the treaty progress.

But for now, Carter seems to be on the right track. He has already persuaded Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., one of the signers of last year's Thurmond resolution, to stay off the new version, and most other Senate Democrats are expected to follow suit.

Baker Proposes Shorter Sessions

WASHINGTON — Some people say a good way to get some hot air back in the freezing state would be to force all the congressmen to go home again for awhile.

Except perhaps for Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., who noted recently he had always been pleased to be described as a warm speaker until he looked up the word in the dictionary and found it meant "not so hot."

Jokes aside, there is a surprising amount of sentiment here, unrelated to the energy crisis, for compelling congressmen to spend less rather than more in Washington.

The subject comes up now, at the beginning of the new term, because congressmen seem more reform-minded than ever before. This is evidenced by the first Senate internal reorganization in 30 years and the House refusal to let Robert Sikes, who was censued by the House for conflict of interest last year, continue as chairman of a sensitive subcommittee.

It may also reflect the lingering political impact of President Carter's successful campaign, which demonstrated that heavy identification with Washington is not necessarily a good thing.

This new theory reversed the long-held concept that a congressman is working only when he is actually present in the corridors of the Capitol. But it assumes that congressmen will spend the time away from their Washington offices at home in their districts, mingling with their constituents, not vacationing in the Bahamas or some other exotic spot.

Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker raised the idea for the first time publicly recently on NBC's "Meet the Press." The Tennessee senator suggested that Congress return to a "citizen-legislator" concept, in which members would sit in session six months and pursue their original profession or business at home the other six months.

Baker thinks this is possible if Congress would stop acting like "a group of selected bureaucrats." He envisioned Congress as limiting its role to setting broad policy and trusting the President to administer the programs and work out the details. "We have to stop passing 1,000-word bills," he said.

House Minority Leader John Rhodes of Arizona was startled by Baker's proposal. Asked for his reaction, Rhodes agreed that congressmen should be free to spend more time keeping in touch with the voters. He did not, however, regard Baker's theory that congressmen could maintain dual careers as realistic and said he feared conflict of interest problems.

A random sampling of congressmen produced the unanimous opinion that shorter sessions would be an improvement. But six months off duty to pursue other money-making jobs seemed a bit much.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., for example, favors a return to the summer vacation syndrome which prevailed until the early 1960s, when Congress became involved in passing so much new social legislation it couldn't get its business done on time to leave town very long.

Winterizing Requests Piling Up

BY MIKE WYNGARDEN

Because of the extreme cold this winter, more than 600 low income people from Berrien, Cass and Van Buren counties have applied for winterizing help from Berrien County Action, Inc., (BCA), according to Silas Legg, program coordinator.

The anti-poverty agency has insulated 54 homes in the three counties since July through its winterizing program, according to Legg, and has supplied emergency fuel to 48 low income families.

But Legg said with the current staff of five people on the winterizing program, BCA can only manage to winterize an average of nine homes a month and cannot meet the requests for the service this winter.

"We're not going to be able to reach all these people this winter," Legg said. "We'd like to get to them all, but unfortunately our staff just isn't big enough to handle it."

Legg said the agency has given priority to winterizing homes of the elderly and families with small children. In addition, BCA is applying for funds from the federal CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) funds to hire more workers.

Currently, BCA's winterizing staff includes Charles Shepherd, winterizing coordinator; a licensed carpenter as a consultant, and three job trainees.

BCA recently received a $20,352 federal grant from the U.S. Community Services Administration to continue the winterizing program at its present rate during the first quarter of 1977. The grant also includes another $5,000 for BCA's emergency fuel program which provides up to $70 to qualified people for a one-time emergency purchase of fuel.

Legg said BCA has also been given a van to haul winterizing equipment to sites. The van was donated by the Monroe Community Action Program (CAP), Legg said, BCA's counterpart in Monroe county. BCA workers have hauled equipment and supplies in their own cars, Legg said.

The winterizing program includes installing windows, storm windows and doors, plugging air leaks, insulating attics and weatherstripping doors. Legg said BCA is limited by federal guidelines to spending no more than $375 on each house for winterizing.

One of the homeowners given winterizing help under BCA's program is Mrs. Bessy Caldon, 73, of Benton township.

Living on an income of $192 a month from Social Security, Mrs. Caldon said BCA's winterizing has reduced her fuel oil bills and has eliminated drafts in the house.

Shepherd said in September BCA replaced five broken windows in the house, insulated the attic, and weatherstripped the doors. In addition, BCA provided $69 to pay for Mrs. Caldon's fuel oil bill recently when she ran out of fuel and did not have the money to buy more.

BCA began the winterizing program in 1973. The agency is headquartered at the Louise Beebe Memorial center at 617 Pipestone street, Benton Harbor.

Lake Bluff Preservation Group Forms In St. Joe

BY RALPH LUTZ
Staff writer

The Lake Bluff Preservation association, formed by St. Joseph residents to oppose widening of Lake boulevard, set its sights on long-range civic improvements during its organizational meeting last night.

Members agreed to cooperate with city officials wherever possible in safety, cultural, recreational and historical areas. Opposition continued, however, to the proposed widening of Lake from Main street south to Market street.

Joseph Richetti of 500 Hatch street was elected association president, and Mrs. Peter (Karen) Johnson of 1225 Lake boulevard was elected recording secretary during the meeting attended by about 30 people at the St. Joseph Art center.

Richetti said the association consists mostly of Lake boulevard area families, but hopes to expand in the city. He said it will remain informal in nature and does not plan to incorporate.

The association adopted its first resolution, supporting the closing of Port street between State and Lake boulevard and also of Lake between Port and Ship to permit expansion of Lake Bluff park. The idea was presented to the city commission in December by Commissioner William Gillespie. He said it came from a citizen, who was not identified.

A second resolution approved unanimously outlined the long range effort "to increase the quality of residential living in the urban environment by enhancing the attractiveness of the inner city." Four objectives are:

—Develop and improve residential neighborhoods as they exist in the inner city.

—Restore and preserve the historical integrity "of the old city of St. Joseph."

—Encourage development of recreation within the city for its residents.

—Improve and provide an awareness of the present and future cultural opportunities in the City of St. Joseph.

Methods to be used include working with city officials and law enforcement agencies to discourage the use of residential boulevards and streets as "main traffic arteries."

Association members opposed widening of Lake, citing increased traffic, noise and added hazards to children. They agreed to see if federal funding can be available for resurfacing Lake, without widening it.

The proposed reconstruction of Lake would cost about $283,000, with 70 per cent funded by the Federal Urban Aid program and the remainder locally. The project would include street reconstruction with new curbs and gutters from Port street on the north to Main street. The widening, planned to be either 2 or 4 feet would be about eight blocks from Market to Main.

The association voted to send to the Southwestern Michigan Regional Planning commission a letter to be attached to the city's grant application. It reminds that 112 people signed petitions opposing the Lake widening. The letter by Atty. Peter Johnson, 1225 Lake, says 76 homes are affected and petitions were signed by occupants of 61 of the homes.

Methods the association also will use include efforts to secure grants for more elderly homeowners. Some grant funds for low income families are now available under the Community Development program.

Restoring and maintaining the "historical beauty of brick paved alleys and streets" also is sought. Another effort will be to close off Lake to vehicular traffic during designated hours for biking and walking. Mrs. Johnson said this would be very limited, perhaps two hours on Sundays during band concerts.

Cooperation with city officials to encourage development of Silver beach for recreation is an association goal. Others include cooperation with the public library to fully utilize its property, help expand art fairs and promote more awareness of the YWCA; and help promote public interest in the municipal band.

Accentuate The Positive Is Theme In BH Sunday

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

Some 225 people gathered at Benton Harbor high school student commons yesterday for a program that brought Benton Harbor residents, elected officials and city employes together in "Celebrating Our City."

"This is the beginning of getting reacquainted," Mayor Joel Patterson said in opening the program. "Hopefully, this celebration of our city will ignite a spirit of working together in a positive attitude." Hosted by the city commission, the program included a buffet dinner, musical entertainment, and addresses by Benton Harbor sports and business representatives and the leader of a Muskegon citizens group. Retired City Clerk Evelyn Garcnawitzke was also honored at the event for her many years of service to the city.

A plaque was accepted on her behalf by her son, Harry Grenawitzke Jr. who said his mother was ill and unable to attend the ceremony. The presentation was made by former Mayor Wilbert Smith.

Mayor Patterson said the main purpose of the program was to "express a positive attitude about our city and to begin a change of the city's image." That aim was reflected in the addresses by the three speakers and in a telegram from Congressman Dave Stockman (R-St. Joseph), who represents the Fourth Congressional district. "I am delighted to send greetings to all of you attending the Benton Harbor Community Celebration today," Stockman said in the telegram. "Such a positive expression of community feeling cannot help but have a healing effect on your city and to give all of us the incentive we need to pursue a resurgent future for the city."

Paul Bergan, head football coach at Benton Harbor high school, said the community, like his football team, should have pride in itself and what it is doing. "When I first arrived here we had problems with a defeatist attitude," Bergan said. "But our main motivation and philosophy became pride and a positive approach, and the enthusiasm just kind of took over. If it works in school, it can work in the community."

Bergan, who is active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, led the Tigers to their best season in six years last fall, his first at Benton Harbor.

J. Howard Edwards, executive director of the Area Resources Improvement Council (ARIC), said area businesses and industries are behind Benton Harbor's hopes to rebuild the city. "The attitude of every businessman I know is that there can be no success in Berrien county until you have progress and success in Benton Harbor," Edwards said. "Business and industry stands ready to be of help," he said. "Hopefully, we can have everyone pulling together."

Urging citizens to organize to deal with local issues, Alfred Williams Jr., president of the Neighborhood Improvement Association Alliance in Muskegon county, said residents should demonstrate a daily attitude of positivism and self-determination. "What we have to get back to is determination of people's lives by the people living it," Williams said. "Face the issues where they are and deal with human development and you will automatically deal with community development."

Master of ceremonies at the program was George Westfield, Berrien county Friend of the Court. Music was provided by Gloria Hawkins, vocal solist accompanied by Patricia Wells; Cheryl Opalski, flute soloist accompanied by Mrs. Dean Sanders; Lori Shoemaker, piano solo; Samuel Read, pianist, and Roy B. Fries, violinist.

Mrs. Frances Lady, co-chairman of the Benton Harbor Bicentennial commission, also presented a plaque to city officials from Michigan Lt. Gov. James Damman recognizing Benton Harbor for its efforts in commemorating the Bicentennial.

Around the clock with WOMEN

Take Care Of Demands

Diamonds scratch one another even though other jewels cannot scratch them, and they may be chipped or broken along the grain line by a severe blow.

So don't bang diamonds against hard surfaces, and do not jumble them together in your jewel box or handbag, the Jewelry Industry Council advises.

If unable to secure the professional cleaning and special inspection service for customers given by most jewelers without charge, you may clean a diamond with soap and hot water, using a soft eyebrow brush and a rinse in tepid water. Then dip the diamond in alcohol to cut the remaining soap film, and drain on cleansing tissue.

And by the way, do not subject diamonds to extremes of heat and cold. Internal flaws may appear or unnoticed ones may be enlarged.

Historical Moving Vehicles

CINCINNATI (AP) — Four of the hundreds of sites listed on the National Register of Historic Places are moving vehicles.

Two are in Louisville, Ky., including the "Belle of Louisville," a harbor excursion paddlewheeler which is America's oldest operating steamboat, and locomotive No. 152, the oldest known surviving example of a high speed passenger "Pacific" type steam locomotive.

On the West Coast, there are the famous cable cars of San Francisco. And still steaming the more than 3,000 miles of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers is the "Delta Queen," which from 1952 through 1976 was America's only overnight passenger steamboat.

MONTICELLO SET CULTURAL PACE

Growth Examined In Forum

By JEAN BARNES

WICHITA, KAN. — (NEA) — Monticello is a national shrine. But it is more than that. It set the pace for the cultural growth and artistic expression in a fledgling nation.

That growth and expression were examined in depth at the Midwest Antiques Forum at the Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn, Mich., this year.

Alan Gowans, chairman, University of Victoria (British Columbia) Department of History and Art, opened the week-long forum on "Collecting Americana: The Decorative Arts in the New Republic."

Jefferson built Monticello, Gowans explained, because he wanted to make a symbol of what every American could aspire to in an independent society.

And Americans have aspired. Style changes in the arts reveal a line of progress, a cultural expression or a social function, he said, and added that art can support established values or promote new ideas.

The line of progress from the emergence of the new nation through two centuries was explored and explained by a variety of experienced and knowledgeable authorities in the field of Americana.

These included Carol Macht, Senior Curator of Decorative Arts, Cincinnati, Ohio, Art Museum, speaking on Chinese export; C. Malcolm Watkins, Chairman, Department of Cultural History, Smithsonian Institution, whose subject was American ceramics; Lowell Innes, author, lecturer and collector from Saco, Maine, who spoke on the emerging styles of American glass, and Ernest P. Dodge, director of the Peabody Museum, Salem, Mass., who talked of the exotic veneer.

Despite the prestigious titles and sophistication in their respective fields, most of the lecturers thia writer talked with are simply collectors at heart.

INFLUENCE: Chinese export porcelains influenced American style.

For instance, Carol Macht established herself as a collector by revealing that she has . . . "the beginning of every great collection and then we get priced off the market." Sounds familiar.

She pointed out that Chinese export porcelains influenced American style and in turn was influenced by the Western market.

Chinese export is still being made in the People's Republic of China, she said, and added that the new ware was marked in red which will wear off.

According to her, it is possible to build a collection of the old blue and white patterns if you are willing to pay the price. Chinese export, as with all other antiques and collectibles, has skyrocketed in price over the past few years.

Lowell Innes, a leading authority on glass, calls himself a student although, "I no longer haunt the antique shops."

Evolving styles in the glass field clearly show the line of progress through the 19th century. Innes, calling glass a specialty within a specialty, said that styles change and repeat themselves. He also pointed out that Tiffany was "not so much a rebel" as he is reputed to have been but that his iridescent glass formula was "purchased."

He said pictorial flasks were "completely American" and advised collectors that there is a great quantity of three-blown mold glass. "It's fairly easy to acquire today and prices are still reasonable."

When Ernest Dodge talked about "The Exotic Veneer" he was describing a cultural veneer in the New England port cities in the first century of our nation . . . "exotic materials they brought back from all over the world."

For every ship that went to China, he said, there were 10 to India. And they brought back goods from the Fiji Islands, the west coast of Africa and Zanzibar. Large quantities of ivory were brought to Ivoryton, Conn., where it was made into billiard balls and piano keys.

Who Sent First Valentine?

A prisoner in the Tower of London may have sent the first valentine cards in 1415.

Charles, Duke of Orleans, was imprisoned in the tower after the defeat of the French at the Battle of Agincourt. He passed the time sending his wife valentine poems in the form of rhymed love letters, says Sally Hopkins, chief researcher for a leading greeting card manufacturer.

Valentine cards again made the scene in 1667 in the diary of Samuel Pepys. It was common practice at the time for people to match valentines by drawing lots from a box. Pepys noted that his wife received a blue card with her name in gold from her valentine, someone named Will Mercer.

Legend says that St. Valentine, imprisoned by a Roman emperor in the third century, sent a letter to his jailer's daughter, with whom he had become enamoured, and signed the letter "From Your Valentine."

Language experts also point out that the letters "v" and "g" were once interchangeable. The Norman word galatin, meaning a lover of women, was at one time written and pronounced "valantan" or "valentin."

"From there to 'Valentine' would be only a slight step," Miss Hopkins says.

The likely root for Valentine's Day is the Roman festival of Lupercalia, according to Miss Hopkins.

The feast was held in February in honor of the pastoral god Lupercus and was important for the Romans. Occurring just before spring, the festival had some aspects of a rebirth rite to it.

During Lupercalia, the names of young women were put into a box. Young men drew the names and the matched couples would be considered partners for a year.

"As Christianity spread, various customs and holidays were absorbed into the religion," Miss Hopkins says. "It was a relatively simple matter to change the name of the feast from Lupercalia to St. Valentine's Day."

Miss Hopkins says the names of saints were eventually substituted for those of girls in the Valentine box — a custom which is still observed in some religious orders.

"The young people were expected to emulate the virtues of whatever saint they drew," says the expert. "It was always more fun, of course, to pick a Girl's name rather than a saint's name, so by the 14th century the custom had reverted to its Roman form."

BARODA — Mr. and Mrs. Randall Sansom are on a wedding trip to Florida and West Virginia following their marriage Saturday, Feb. 5, at First Apostolic church, Bridgman.

The Rev. George Helmuth and the Rev. Gale Finch performed the ceremony for the former Miss Felicia Frances Villa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald O. Ellsworth, 10203 Cleveland avenue, Baroda, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnie Sansom, route 1, Box 344, Galien.

The bride wore a qiana empire gown trimmed with pearls. Pearls trimmed her crown headpiece which held her elbow length veil and she carried roses, pompons, carnations and baby's breath.

Plan New Teaching System

Nurses Training

Lake Michigan college nurses training program next September will begin using a new system of teaching which is both innovative and self-motivational, according to Dr. Dorothy Leader, LMC associate dean for health sciences.

Called Learning Experience Guides for Nursing Students (LEGS), the system was developed and its literature co-authored by Anne K. Roe, RN, and Mary Sherwood, RN, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Mrs. Roe, who holds a master's degree in nursing from Florida Atlantic university and is now a nursing consultant, visited the LMC campus two weeks ago to discuss LEGS with the college nursing teaching faculty and with nursing representatives from local hospitals.

"The LEGS system, which is now in use in a number of nursing schools throughout the country, encompasses a great many approaches," Dr. Leader said, "all of which have proved to be effective. It includes a series of books, audio and visual learning systems, student manuals, bibliographies and other learning resources."

The LEGS program involves more student participation than the old lecture system, Dr. Leader, said, and includes the use of auto-tutorial devices, tape recorders and slide projectors.

"It's a multi-media system of programmed instruction," Dr. Leader said, "which has proved to be more efficient and more effective than the older system. It is capable of developing greater student response, and in general better prepares students for the difficult and detailed tasks ahead of them in the field of nursing."

Schools utilizing the LEGS system have better records with state board examinations than the same schools had using the older, traditional methods of teaching, Dr. Leader indicated.

Mrs. Roe, who formerly taught nursing at Broward Community college, Ft. Lauderdale, explained in detail the LEGS system at the January meeting with LMC health science teaching personnel. The session also was attended by Marian Miller, RN, director of nursing, Memorial hospital, St. Joseph, and Helen Plezia, RN, director of nurses at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor.

Earlier this week, the LMC nursing faculty approved the change to the new system which will go into effect first semester of the 1977-78 school year.

DENTAL HEALTH

Cavity Prone

Editor's Note: Feb. 6-12 is the 29th annual National Children's Dental-Health Week. As part of the observance, The Herald-Palladium, in cooperation with the Lakeland Valley Dental Assistants Society, today begins a series of six articles on dental health facts.

I have seen references on television to the child's "cavity-prone years." What is this condition?

By the age of 12 or 13, most of a child's permanent teeth are in position. Unfortunately, the teen years are when the highest rate of tooth decay occurs. Statistics indicate that by age 14, the average person has 14 decayed, missing or filled teeth.

There are three major factors that play a role in tooth decay by triggering a chain reaction: plaque, sugar and tooth susceptibility. By paying more attention to these three items, teenagers could make a drastic change in the statistics.

First, plaque is the sticky, almost invisible film of bacteria that forms on everyone's teeth. When sugar is consumed, bacteria in plaque use it and form acids that attack the tooth enamel, eventually causing decay.

Teenagers often neglect good oral hygiene habits. But brushing and flossing once a day to remove plaque can make a big difference.

At the same time, it is wise to cut down on the number of times sweets are consumed. It is especially important to avoid sweet snacks. Parents can make sure that a child has a well-balanced diet at home that will aid in the building of strong teeth and bones. But teenagers spend more time away from home and often choose the wrong foods, including sugary foods and beverages as between-meal snacks. Careful selection of their own foods can also help to reduce decay.

The final factor is susceptible teeth. Scientists are trying to find ways of making teeth more resistant to decay. They have found, for example, that fluoride is a compound that helps to significantly reduce tooth decay. Drinking water containing adequate fluoride from birth is known to curtail tooth decay by about 65 per cent. Another practical way of getting fluoride is the use of an accepted fluoride toothpaste.

Plaque removal, avoiding sweet snacks and using fluorides every day can add up to better dental health.

Family Films Tuesday

A travel and an historical film will be featured Tuesday, Feb. 8, at 7:30 p.m. for Family Film Night at Maud Preston Palenske Memorial library in St. Joseph.

"Switzerland," shows the varied activities of people in the cities and villages of that country, and some of the main industries. "Silversmith of Williamsburg," traces the handcrafting of a silver coffee pot as it would have been fashioned by a master silversmith, his journeyman and apprentices in 18th century Williamsburg. Details about the fashions in decorative arts, the methods, working conditions and finances of the craftsmen are woven into the commentary.

"Racketty Raccoon and his Story Hour Friends" will celebrate Lincoln's and Washington's birthday and Valentine's day during February. Story hours for preschool through second grade children are held every Saturday at the library at 11 a.m.

Anne Stobbe, head librarian, and Barbara Troost, staff member, have prepared a display, which will be in the library during February, of memorabilia of the St. Joseph public library.

New books at the library include "To the Opera Ball" by Sarah Gainham; "Death Raft" by Alexander McKee, and "The Fall of Public Man" by Richard Sennett.

AU Band To Tour Romania

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Andrews university Concert band has been invited by Friendship Ambassadors to tour Romania in May and June, according to Patricia Silver, band director.

Plans call for nine concerts in various parts of the country, with the exact locations to be designated later.

Each band member has been given the responsibility of raising $630 toward the expense of the trip. Fund-raising will bring in about 60 per cent of the cost, with Friendship Ambassadors funding the remaining 40 per cent.

"Contributions toward the expenses of the trip are tax-deductible and most welcome," says Mrs. Silver.

Friendship Ambassadors organization has been sponsoring tours of communist-controlled countries for about five years and is subsidized by a number of private foundations and by "Reader's Digest."

The Andrews university band has received a letter of welcome sythe Romanian ambassador to the United States, Nicolae M. Nicolae. Romania is celebrating the 100th anniversary of its independence this year. ## Like Lamps

The earliest "candles" were more like lamps or torches.

The candle as we know it developed in the third century, AD, and was used exclusively in churches. The first candlesticks to hold these candles were made of wood.

Later, precious metals were employed, including silver. The first type of candlestick was the pricket, but around the 16th century the pricket took on superstitious significance. The socket candlestick, which is still used today, replaced it.

To go with the silver candlesticks were such silver accessories as snuffers, which looked like scissors except one blade was broad.

Silver candelabra had been used by the Romans and the English of Queen Anne's day revived the practice by placing silver candelabra in their homes. Most provided space for three to five candles, but some could hold as many as 12 candles and were used to light large dining halls.

Llama Spits At Enemies

The llama is a South American beast of burden related to the camel.

It is sure-footed and can carry more than 100 pounds. But when it is angry or tired, it spits at the person who is annoying it.

Try Fruity Cream Puffs

Fold well-drained canned fruit cocktail into sweetened whipped cream.

Spoon into tiny cream puffs. Sprinkle with red and green sugar.

Composers Accept Commissions

NEW YORK (AP) — The chorus of the Newark Boys school has commissioned composers Gian-Carlo Menotti and Peter Mennin to write major works for the school, according to Terrence Shook, music director.

The commissions are "in tune with the old patronage idea that certain artists commissioned great composers to write things specifically for them," Shook said. The works will be about 30 minutes long and will probably be ready for a world premiere at the end of this year, he added.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Psychiatrist Too Expensive

Dear Ann Landers: I am fed up with your all-purpose answer — "Get some counseling." You apply it to every situation. "I hate my father." "Get some counseling." "Nobody likes me." "Get some counseling." "I was hit by a bus." "Get some counseling."

I admit that last one is a little far-fetched, but so is your idea of counseling. How many people can afford $50 an hour for a shrink?

Don't tell me about those wonderful "free clinics." Show me a free clinic in a small town and I'll show you a zebra with feathers.

Telling a kid to see her school guidance counselor is ridiculous when she goes to a school that doesn't have one. Besides, a 15-year-old girl like myself doesn't want counseling. She wants your advice. That's why she writes to you. — Mad Teen

Dear Teen: Some problems can be solved by saying yes or no, or, "Tell him to get lost," or "Forget it." Other problems need to be talked out. Just verbalizing your feelings can make you feel a whole lot better . . . and sometimes it can help you identify the problem yourself, which is better than having someone point it out to you.

Any junior high school that doesn't have at least one guidance counselor is short-changing its students. If they have money for gym equipment they have money for a counselor. The parents should raise Cain.

If there is no free clinic in your town, there must be a clergyman or a doctor or a judge or a kind teacher who will listen to a troubled kid. I'm not copping out when I say "get counseling." It's good advice and I stand by it.

Money's Okay

Dear Ann: A woman wrote to say she wished her friends and relatives had sent money to help pay the funeral expenses when her husband died, instead of sending huge baskets of flowers and long letters that only made her feel worse. You replied, "Sorry, it would not be in good taste."

You are WRONG. Sending money to the family of the bereaved is an honorable Japanese custom. When my father-in-law died, the money gifts not only paid for his funeral, but helped keep my mother-in-law in a nursing home until she died.

ANN LANDERS

A retraction, please. — Mrs. M. (Chicago)

Dear Mrs. M.: You are right. I was wrong. I checked with my Japanese friends and learned the "ko-den" (money gift) is not only proper but considered a very thoughtful gesture. Money gifts are accepted by a committee at the wake. The list of donors is then given to the next of kin who later sends each donor some home-baked sweets or a note of appreciation. "Arigotto" for straightening me out.

Reruns Help

Dear Ann Landers: I just read your definition of maturity, for the second time. It first appeared five years ago and I was delighted to see it again. (This time I clipped it out, something I meant to do in 1972 but didn't.)

I notice you rerun various letters when readers request them. Why don't you gather your best columns and make them into a book? I would be pleased to have such a collection. — Long Time Ann Fan

Dear Fan: I did. The book published by Fawcett, ANN LANDERS SPEAKS OUT, is now in paperback. Price — $1.50. If your bookstore is out, write to Fawcett Publishing Company, P.O. Box 1014, Greenwich, Conn. 06830. Add 35 cents for postage.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

A Real Problem

I witnessed a wedding last summer that focused attention on a real problem: smokers vs. non-smokers.

The smokers (seated at the left of the altar) and the non-smokers (seated at the right of the altar) heard the minister ask, "Do you, Debbie, promise to love and cherish from this day forward, for better or for worse, for richer or for poorer, in sickness and in health, so long as Richard inhales?" She took a deep breath and answered, "I will."

It made you wonder. Could a militant non-smoker, wearing a Thank You For Not Smoking headband with a veil attached, find happiness with a man with a brown stain on his index finger? Only time would tell.

Last week, I ran into Debbie. She jumped up, clicked her heels in mid-air and said, "I quit! It's a matter of life and breath."

"I know that, Debbie," I smiled. "So, how is Richard?"

"Who knows?" she sighed. "The only time I see him is on elevators and in doctor's offices where all smoking is prohibited. Everyplace else has smoking and non-smoking areas and we are split up."

"Is that any kind of life for two young people who are just married?"

"We knew there would be hardships. When we went on a vacation last year, I saw him on the plane briefly when he went to use the restroom. Sometimes, if the smoke isn't too thick, I wave to him in restaurants where I'm seated across the room."

"Are you saying you are never together?"

"That's right. When we go to a movie, he sits in the smoking section and I sit in the non-smoking section. We never talk in the lobby of a theatre anymore. I can't stand the smoke. Since he's in a smoker's car pool, I ride to work with a non-smoker's group. We used to go to the grocery together, but now he has to stay outside if he wants to light up. Our entire house is sectioned off into smoking and non-smoking areas."

"The problem is going to get worse," I said. "More and more, our society is being asked to make a choice between smoking and non-smoking."

"I know," sighed Debbie. "I don't know what we'll do when the baby comes. I'd like Richard to see it, but the hospital is definitely for non-smokers."

"The baby!" I gasped. "How did you ever get pregnant in the first place?"

She shrugged. "I've narrowed it down to the doctor's office and elevators."

Can you explain what is meant by pseudo gout? It seems to me that either you have gout or you don't have it. — Mrs. R.E.E., Wash.

Dear Mrs. E.:

Not all medical problems are clear and distinct. Sometimes symptoms and signs of different conditions overlap each other. This explains why a diagnosis is sometimes called "pseudo," which means "false."

Pseudo gout is known as chondro-calcinosis. This condition sometimes suggests gout, but later can be found to be different from it.

Blood studies and X-rays can reveal the presence of calcium as a cause, rather than uric acid (the offender in gout).

I'm in the theatre and need a lot of energy for each performance. Someone suggested that I should get an injection of vitamin B-12 before each performance. Is this sound, from a medical point of view? — Miss A.D., N.Y.

Dear Miss D.:

My immediate suggestion is that you change from your "Dr. Someone" to a more authoritative doctor before you embark on such a costly bit of nonsense.

Far too many people have the confused idea that vitamin B-12 or B complex injected into the buttocks, the arms, and even into the veins, is the answer to robust energy.

The sudden jolt of such an injection seems to give some people the illusion that they have been "energized." For them, the psychological advantage of an injection may be helpful.

Actually, taking vitamins by month is just as good. A well-balanced, nutritious diet contains far more vitamins than are normally necessary for good health.

Only in special instances of known vitamin B deficiency are repeated injections indicated.

Are you sure you're getting enough rest? Have you recently had a medical checkup?

Jim: "In all systems that use the forcing two bid it is understood that the jump to four partner's two-spade or two-heart bid shows good trump support while denying any first or second-round controls. Who thought of that bid?"

Oswald: "It was my old partner — life master number one, Dave Bruce. We were the first pair to use the bid, but others adopted it quickly."

Jim: "North really had sub-minimum values for his bid on account of his 4-3-3-3 distribution. South expected a trifle more when he bid six, but careful play brought the slam home."

Oswald: "He won the spade in his own hand, cashed the ace of diamonds and noted that West dropped the jack. Now he played two more rounds of trumps while making sure to win the last one in dummy before leading dummy's five of diamonds toward his own hand."

Jim: "South would have played his nine if East played low, but East put up the ten. South took his king, led a diamond back to dummy's eight and East's queen. This allowed him to discard a club from dummy on his fifth diamond and ruff his last club to wind up with five trumps, plus a ruff in dummy, plus four diamonds and two clubs for a total of twelve."

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know if the laws for duplicate and rubber bridge are the same and if not, why not?

The answer is that they are different because there is a new code for duplicate while the new code for rubber bridge is not out yet. We will discuss some of the differences later this week.

AUGUST FRY
And Braille watch

Kalamazoo Man Can See Again

PORT RICHEY, Fla. (AP) — When August "Gus" Fry returns to Kalamazoo, Mich., after 19 years of blindness, he will see his seven grandchildren for the first time.

When Fry quit watching television, Groucho Marx, Desi Arnaz and the "Wild Bill Hickock" show were regulars on the screen. Now, Fry enjoys Captain Kangaroo on TV.

"To be able to see things, to see colors and everything — you just can't believe it," Fry, 59, said as he struggled to express his feelings.

Fry and his wife were on their regular winter visit to Florida when the owner of the campground where they stay told of a doctor who had often performed successful cataract surgery. Fry, whose right eye had been removed because of an infection, visited the doctor. In a 30-minute operation a week ago, an artificial lens was set into his left eye.

The next morning, a nurse removed the bandage. "When she took that bandage off," Fry said, "it was the first time I'd been able to see in all those years. I looked down the corridor and there was an 'Exit' sign about 20 feet down the hall. It just about scared me."

His first words to his wife, he revealed shyly, were, "You're just as beautiful as when I married you."

Patricia Fry has her own revelation — that her husband has taken a liking to Captain Kangaroo in the week since his sight was restored.

She still extends her arm to guide her husband. Fry still feels for cabinet handles instead of looking for them. They laugh at the adjustment they've had to make.

Cataract operations aren't unusual. The doctor who did this one says the technique has been widely used for five years. Fry, however, had feared surgery because of complications that followed the operation in 1956 in which his right eye was removed.

The other eye clouded over until he could only tell light from darkness.

Fry had been a construction engineer, an active man who enjoyed carpentry, ice fishing and other outdoor activity. But he learned to accept blindness — he learned to read braille, he joined the Kalamazoo Federation of the Blind, he influenced legislation in Michigan to help the handicapped.

And he started a business casting birdbaths and lawn ornaments of concrete.

"I probably had to work 12 hours," Fry said. "To do what a man with two eyes and good sight could do in eight hours."

Now he's ready to take a break. "I just want to quit working," he said, "and let the boys have the business, and just relax."

OAKLAND GIRL

Former Policeman Murder Suspect

DETROIT (AP) — A 30-year-old former Detroit policeman was arraigned Sunday on felony murder charges in connection with last week's rape-murder of 10-year-old Valerie Bishop.

Moses Potter, 30, dismissed from the police force in 1972, was picked up Friday night at his home a block from the slain girl's residence.

Detroit Homicide Det. Lt. Gerald Stewart said the arrest was made after tips from neighbors triggered the interest of police investigators.

Police refused to speculate on a possible connection between Potter and the slayings of six children in Oakland County in the past year.

The Oakland County task force formed to solve the series of unsolved killings has not talked to Potter, said Stewart.

Police said they were not immediately able to determine why Potter was dismissed from the police force. Potter has no arrest record.

The girl's fully-clothed body was discovered by police in a snowbank behind the duplex where Potter lived.

An autopsy showed the fourth-grader was sexually assaulted before being bludgeoned and stabbed to death, police said.

A Detroit Recorder's Court judge ordered Potter held without bail at the Wayne County Jail pending a Feb. 17 preliminary examination.

Bar Seeking Court Review

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gary Gilmore's firing squad execution has prompted the Utah State Bar to adopt a resolution seeking mandatory review by the state Supreme Court of all death-penalty cases.

The statute under which Gilmore was convicted last month did not allow for such review, and Gilmore fought attempts to save him from the firing squad.

"If there ever was a case that should have been reviewed, it was Gilmore's," Salt Lake County Atty. R. Paul Van Dam told the weekend bar meeting.

Utah Supreme Court Justice J. Allan Crockett said Utah law does not allow a review unless a defendant requests it and "had no opportunity to do anything other than what was done" in the Gilmore case.

Minneapolis Avoids Winter Panic With 'Cold Logic'

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — This part of America is unashamed long johns country. In wintertime, people think cold.

"That's how we make it through each year," said energy commissioner John Millhone, as he discussed the persistent below-zero temperatures that hover over Minnesota.

While people in this heartland state commiserate with the plight of snow-engulfed Buffalo and other hard-hit regions in the East, the general feeling is that, while as much snow could fall, the resulting chaos couldn't happen here. Not again, anyway.

"We learned our lesson the hard way, just like Buffalo is doing now," said Melvin Enquist, director of the city's street maintenance department. "The Armistice Day blizzard of 1940 sneaked in unexpected during a weekend because in those days we had weather reports on only five days a week.

"Our snow-removal equipment was so primitive that Minneapolis was totally paralyzed for six days," Enquist recalled. "We lost 48 people dead to the storm throughout the state."

Minneapolis had a chance to redeem itself 35 years later when an even bigger storm, the "Superbowl blizzard", hit mid-January 1975 as local fans watched on TV while the Minnesota Vikings went down to defeat by the Pittsburgh Steelers in New Orleans.

By next day, Monday morning, the city was functioning despite the huge snowdrifts, the continuing heavy snowfalls, and the high winds. "That's how far we had come since 1940," Enquist said.

Word had already spread around the country that Minneapolis had a handle on beating heavy snowfalls, and its help was sought. Atlanta, hit by a heavy fall in the late 1950s, asked the Minnesota city for advice and the then-Mayor, P.K. Peterson, a man of wit, cabled back a one-word reply, "dig."

An enquirer today would get sheaves of position papers, statistics and reports from Minneapolis. They boil down to a one-two-three punch for neutralizing blizzards.

Firstly, the city of nearly a half-million population believes in bringing to bear massive snow-fighting equipment, financed from an annual $2.5 million budget. Ready to go into action Nov. 1 each year are 110 snow plows, including the Canadian-built tracked vehicles that look like tanks and can negotiate any drift.

Snow blowers, graders and sand and salt spreaders, plus over 100 dump trucks to move snow, push the Minneapolis vehicle complement to 250. In addition, officials may close down all city construction in a snow emergency and use the equipment for the storm. They also have access to private equipment under a system where each autumn operators offer their vehicles for use if necessary under a bidding system.

In addition to a daily fight against a snowfall that can reach as much as 90 inches in a winter, the Minneapolis authorities lay down several miles of five-foot-tall snow fence in autumn in the worst drift areas.

The second punch is a system of tough city laws that, in coordination with its sister city of St. Paul across the Mississippi River, come quickly into effect to keep the city moving. Officials may declare an emergency after three inches of snow, and this means the immediate clearance of parked vehicles from emergency routes.

Street maintenance superintendent Jack Beattie said his department towed away from 300 to 500 vehicles each day of a major storm, and rigorously enforced the law.

The third punch, the cooperation of businesses, institutions, the news media and the public, "averts panic, leads to cooperation, and sees us through each time," said Beattie. "The panic that apparently enveloped Buffalo in the first hours of the recent blizzard wouldn't happen here."

Want To Bet On Weather?

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers and energy planners will have gamblers' odds available from a new long-range weather forecasting system to be established by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

Bergland says his plans have the approval of President Carter.

Under the plan, U.S. and foreign weather records, some dating back more than 100 years, will be placed in a computer system. The computer, Bergland says, may give 6 to 5 odds, for example, on the probability of future drought or the kind of winter now gripping the eastern half of the United States.

Although it will be designed primarily to help farmers and the Agriculture Department make crop plans, Bergland said in an interview that the forecast also will be valuable for making long-range energy policy and other decisions.

"We'll be a kind of Jimmy the Greek in agricultural forecasting," Bergland said.

Pro-Ferry Stand

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan-Wisconsin task force recommends the two states fight plans to abandon car ferries across Lake Michigan, despite a campaign by the vessels' owners to halt operations. The report, presented to Gov. William Milliken, said the economic benefits of the ferry service give the states "no alternative but to oppose vigorously" proposals to end it. The report also went to Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey.

CRASH LANDING: No one was seriously injured when a plane piloted by Don Dorstewitz, 43, attempted to land on U.S. 131 near Kalamazoo Saturday. Plane struck a car roof, a road sign, swerved and flipped on its top. Flying with Dorstewitz was Richard Baker, 40. Both are from Delton, Michigan. (AP Wirephoto)

LANDING NEAR KALAMAZOO

Airplane Hits Car's Roof

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — A light plane gliding in for an emergency landing on Michigan 131 struck a car roof and landed upside down, but police said no one was injured in the crash.

Pilot Don Dorstewitz, 43, said the engine in the two-passenger Cessna 150 sputtered and died Saturday half an hour from the Kalamazoo Municipal Airport. The plane was about three miles from M-131, so Dorstewitz headed in that direction while passenger Richard Baker, 40, used a manual pump to force fuel into the engine.

The aircraft wheel struck the roof of a car driven by Lois Cook of Otsego as the plane dipped to the road. Miss Cook told police she watched the plane land on the highway, apparently safe until its right wing clipped a road sign. That caused the Cessna to do a quarter-circle skid off the roadway and into a snowbank, where it flipped over and landed upside down.

Neither the two men in the plane nor the occupants of the car — Miss Smith and passengers Helen Smith, 57, and her daughter Dorothy Smith, both of Otsego — were injured, police said.

"I've never ridden in a plane," the elderly Mrs. Smith said after the accident. "And now I know I won't."

Dorstewitz said he thought the engine failure might have been caused by ice in the fuel line. The plane was rented from the Kalamazoo airport-based Kal-Aero, Inc.

Egyptian Firm May Buy Michigan Lumber, Grain

By LARRY McDERMOTT
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The first major foreign importer lured here by the state's new International Trades Division came to town the other day to look at Michigan's wares.

Mohamed Ezzat, chairman of the board of the Arab Foreign Trade Co. in Cairo, Egypt, met with state Department of Agriculture officials to learn what the state has to offer and to meet possible suppliers.

Laying out the goods was Mansour Bejaoui, head of the trades division, and his assistant, Mike Hayenga.

They talked about grains and lumber, among other things. State officials also lined up talks between Ezzat, who said his nationally-owned company turned a $300 million profit last year, and producers like Albert Quaal of Grayling.

Quaal is vice president of Lake Woods Forest Products, Inc., and he wants to sell the Egyptians some hard and soft woods for furniture construction.

"We've always imported lumber on a small basis, mostly from European countries, but now we're looking for more from the United States," Ezzat told Quall. He explained that his trip was to get acquainted and that no contracts would be offered now.

"We might be talking about increasing our importation of lumber by 200 per cent if the price is agreeable and the quality is good," Ezzat adde.

Ezzat also would like to deal with a group of Michigan farmers for some grain and met with Michigan Farm Bureau officials to discuss the possibility.

Exporting state products isn't new, but the scale is growing mainly through the efforts of Bejaoui and his staff.

And whether Ezzat's trip to Michigan last week will pay off depends to a large extent on what happens in Mideast peace talks.

"Egypt, for the past 15 to 20 years, has been holding most of its money for military spending, but now the possibility of peace is becoming greater," said Bejaoui, a native of Tunisia who came to the United States in 1966.

"They want to develop their industry. In my opinion, this is only the beginning for Michigan. The increase in exports will be great, and I think we'll be in a very good position to compete with other states," he added.

Bejaoui met Ezzat in Egypt last year and lined up the visit. The invitation was accepted, and the trades division began its first major step toward boosting exports.

The division also distributes to foreign dealers a list of Michigan companies and what they have to offer. One official called it a shopping list.

ZONING ORDINANCE, FIRE TAX

Chikaming Proposals Rejected

BY TOM SAWYER
Staff writer

LAKESIDE — A revised zoning ordinance and a property tax issue for fire equipment were rejected by Chikaming township voters here Saturday. In unofficial vote totals the zoning ordinance revision was defeated 377 to 421 while voters turned down the proposed three-year, one-mill levy for fire equipment by a 330 to 465 count.

Township Supervisor Donald Peterson said 822 of the township's estimated 2,200 registered voters turned out for the balloting, or 40 per cent of those registered. He called the turnout a little lower than normal and attributed it to the weather. Because of the zoning ordinance defeat the prior zoning ordinance will be in effect as of Feb. 6. The defeat overturned township board action last June that adopted the revised ordinance. The referendum was scheduled after township residents petitioned the board for a vote.

It was the third defeat of a millage proposal for firefighting equipment. The 135-vote margin was the largest margin of defeat. Last May voters turned down a 1.5 mill levy for three years by 44 votes and a one-mill proposal in August by just four votes. Peterson said the vote means the township will have to seek other methods of budgeting the cost of a new fire truck already received. Peterson said the township had hoped to use some of the millage funds to purchase the new truck as well as replace two others and purchase other firefighting equipment. Peterson said there are no specific financing alternatives at the present time.

Asked what he thought led to the millage defeat, Peterson said, "I don't think people are interested in paying more taxes." Peterson commented that the no votes cast represent just 20 per cent of the total number of voters. "One out of five voters are deciding these issues for the township," he said.

Wounded Man Is 'Satisfactory'

I.W. Brown, 26, of 386 Linden avenue, Benton township, was hospitalized late Saturday night with a gunshot wound to the leg.

Brown, who was reported in satisfactory condition this morning at Mercy hospital, told township Patrolman Robert Polmanteer a shot was fired by an occupant of a black and yellow Ford. Brown said he was walking on Linden near his home at the time. He reported no motive, Polmanteer said.

The hospital notified police of the shooting at 10:14 p.m. A slug, apparently from a small-caliber gun, struck Brown in the right thigh and passed through, Polmanteer said. A search for an auto matching the description was unsuccessful. Brown said he was taken to the hospital by a cousin, Johnny Anderson, 31, of 404 Linden, who reported hearing gunfire from his home.

Area Police Roundup

Benton Harbor police said Halbert Bell, 30, of 425 Territorial road, apartment 1, was injured by what Bell said was a blow to the head by a man wielding a cue stick early Sunday. Bell was treated and released from Mercy hospital.

Bell told police he was struck by the cue stick in the Brooklyn bar, 379 Territorial road. Police said Bell, who was cut about the head, went to the nearby Ponderosa bar, 426 Territorial road, where an unknown person called for help. Police were notified at 12:38 a.m. No arrest was made, pending further investigation, police said.

Benton township police said an investigation of a stabbing Saturday night produced little information from the victim, who was released from Mercy hospital after treatment.

Stabbed in the upper left arm was Richard Jones, 25, of 1946 East Britain avenue, apartment 15. Police reported that Jones would say only that the stabbing occurred earlier in Benton township and Jones did not want to file a complaint. Police were notified by the hospital at 9:47 p.m.

Benton township police said two men were arrested on charges of larceny early Sunday about two hours after Kermit Robinson, 2399 Lawrence drive, reported his snowmobile was stolen from his driveway.

Booked at Berrien county jail on charges of larceny over $100 were James P. Durden, 17, and Larry J. Taylor, 18, both of 2088 East Empire avenue.

Patrolman Kim Fowler said the snowmobile was found about three blocks from Robinson's home.

Berrien county sheriff's deputies said Jean Shersmith, 48, of 2926 Dozer drive, St. Joseph township, reported the theft of a leather coat and a pair of gloves valued at $218 during a wedding reception Saturday night at the St. Joseph Kickers club, Royalton township.

Benton Harbor police said Charles Baugher, 44, of Coloma, reported the theft Sunday of a CB radio valued at $72 from his car while it was parked at K-mart, 455 Riverview drive.

Gunman Wounds Trooper, Himself

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — A State Police trooper was wounded in a struggle with a gunman late Sunday, officials said today.

The scuffle began after trooper Thomas Hunt, 28, and his partner stopped a car that was driving erratically on a road in Washtenaw County's Ypsilanti Township, police said.

Hunt said a passenger, 17-year-old Robert Blackburn of Wayne, doubled over as though he were sick when asked to step out of the car.

Hunt said he straightened the youth up to frisk him and saw a pistol in his hand. The officer made a move to grab the weapon and the .22-caliber handgun discharged in the ensuing struggle, Hunt said.

The bullet struck Hunt in the hand and lodged in Blackburn's leg.

Both were treated at an Ann Arbor hospital and released.

Police said Blackburn was charged with assault with intent to commit murder and with carrying a concealed weapon. He also faces charges of possession of a controlled substance, officials said.

The driver of the car, who was not identified, also faces concealed weapons charges since the gun was in his vehicle, police said.

Both were to be arraigned later today.

Andrews Coed, 20, Reports Attack

BERRIEN SPRINGS — A 20-year-old Andrews university student told police here she was stabbed when attacked on a foot path near the campus yesterday afternoon.

Treated at the university medical center for a 1½-inch stab would wound to her stomach was Susan Koshara, from Ruffsdale, Pa., who lives at 741 Cherry drive in Berrien Springs.

Berrien Springs village - Oronoko township police said Miss Koshara told officers she was walking on a foot path connecting Maple Wood drive and Garland avenue when a young man grabbed her from behind.

She said she was stabbed in an ensuing struggle with her attacker.

The man fled south toward Maple Wood after stabbing her, Miss Koshara reported.

Police described the attacker as white, about 20 years old, 5-foot-10 and weighing about 165 pounds. He was wearing a blue scarf and light green parka.

Police were notified of the stabbing about 6:45 p.m. by medical center officials. Miss Koshara said she was attacked about 12:30 p.m., but attempted to dress the wound herself before seeking medical attention.

No Disaster Aid Okayed For Area

50 miles of blocked roads—all without homes on them—as of last Thursday when figures were compiled for the governor's office. Berrien fell short of the 100 miles of blocked roads that was used as a criteria for Emergency Assistance.

Kaiser noted that the representatives of the Corps of Engineers who arrived in Van Buren county Sunday had difficulty in trying to hire snow equipment to work on the blocked roads. He said Van Buren and Allegan counties already had virtually all available private machines working for them on the one-lane roads.

Duane Trombly, disaster planning officer in the Emergency Services division of the Michigan State Police, said this morning the FDAA declined to declare the Michigan counties a major Disaster Area, offering only Emergency Assistance.

Trombly reported the FDAA said snow conditions were even worse in Indiana and Ohio, and that those two states also had been refused Disaster Area status and financial assistance for snow removal.

Covert Township's Sewer Vote Is Tuesday

COVERT — Covert township voters will go to the polls Tuesday, Feb. 8, for a special election to decide a one-mill, 20-year levy for a proposed $3.7 million sewer system.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at two voting precincts, the township hall and the township fire station.

The one-mill proposal, if approved, would raise a total of about $40,000 annually based on the total township valuation of $39,412,088.

The levy over 20 years would generate 20 per cent of the total sewer project cost, the local share, with 80 per cent coming from federal and state grants which have been approved for the township. Total cost of the project is set at $3,717,900 with the local share set at $1,182,000.

The proposed project involves construction of stabilization lagoons for sewage treatment and sewer lines to 416 property owners or about 20 per cent of the property owners in the township. Individual sewer hook-up fees, estimated at between $600 and $1,100, and average monthly sewer use charges of about $9 per user would be paid by the 416 property owners.

As proposed the sewer system would serve a general service area including 30th avenue and CR-378 from I-196 to just east of M-140; M-140 from 28th avenue to just south of 36th avenue; 76th street from 34th avenue to 40th avenue; and 34th avenue from 76th street to 72nd street. Not included is the area west of I-196 including the Palisades nuclear plant and the Palisades park area.

The township's engineering firm, Williams and Works of Grand Rapids, has said areas not included in the service area lacked sufficient population density to be economically feasible.

Van Buren County Environmental Health Director Les Brown has said a survey of about 240 homes in the township indicated that about 15 per cent had some type of failure in of their present sewage system.

AGAINST CLOSING M-139: State Rep. Harry Gast Jr., (standing), promised to join with businessmen and concerned citizens to oppose the proposed closing of M-139 during a year-long bridge construction project. He was one of 25 people who attended a meeting of the Royalton Township Improvement association Saturday at Scottdale branch of Peoples State bank. The closing could hurt businesses on both sides of the Somerlayton bridge and cause traffic problems, people at the meeting said. (Staff photo)

Somerlayton Bridge Fight Brews

BY NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

Closing M-139 to build a new Somerlayton bridge would double traffic on Niles road, bottle up the Niles road exit from I-94 and hurt businesses on both sides of the bridge, businessmen and citizens pointed out Saturday.

Most of the people at a meeting called by the Royalton Township Improvement association were non-association members concerned about traffic hazards they said would affect all of south St. Joseph.

Scottdale and Fairplain Plaza businessmen, and Royalton and Benton township officials, said the disrupted traffic patterns would drain business from their areas.

State Rep. Harry Gast Jr. (R-St. Joseph) promised to support an effort to get the State Highway department to build the new bridge upstream of the Somerlayton bridge, allowing the bridge and M-139 to stay in use during the estimated year-long construction project.

The State Highway department is considering building the new Somerlayton bridge over the St. Joseph river on the existing bridge site to save an estimated $600,000, Ronald Roberts, a route location engineer said last week.

The traffic problem would be created when motorists could no longer turn off of Niles at M-139 to head toward Fairplain Plaza and Benton Harbor. Northbound drivers would have to continue along Niles turn onto I-94 eastbound and exit at M-139, north of the closed section of the road.

Lloyd Both, of 5584 Tilly, Royalton township, said that at first glance the closing of M-139 is no problem for him because he doesn't use that road to go to work and back. "It doesn't involve me, until I can't turn onto Niles from Hollywood road because of the heavy traffic," he said.

Charles Eckenstahler, director of the Berrien County Planning commission, said that traffic loads on Niles road, are too high now. If M-139 were to close, traffic on Niles during "peak hours" would double, he said.

Eckenstahler agreed to supply information on request about traffic patterns in the affected areas to people at the meeting. They indicated that fighting the proposal on the basis of safety, rather than business impact or the greater amount of gasoline consumption that the plan would force, would be best.

Businessmen on both sides of the bridge, in Scottdale and at Fairplain Plaza, fear that shoppers will find a more convenient place to shop instead of taking the one and one-half mile detour.

Gast said "the state has made this a controversy by changing its mind." He explained that the state highway commission earlier approved construction of a replacement for the Somerlayton bridge upstream. Under the plan, the 77-year-old Somerlayton structure would have been used during construction of the new bridge.

Said Gast: "This is not the I-94 Penetrator, with divided opinion about its need. We're agreed the new bridge is needed and the state's changed its mind."

The change of mind apparently came when the highway commission realized that $600,000 could be saved by building at the site of the Somerlayton bridge rather than upstream, Gast said.

He told the crowd "The state has a budget, and they have so much to spend for highways." Some of the money should be spent in southwestern Michigan, rather than in Detroit, he said.

Gast also said he'd obtain, in writing, a statement from the highway department telling exactly where the proposed bridge is to be built. He said it's possible that the reported route-change is "a trial balloon" that can be "punctured" by public outcry.

The association decided to hold another meeting next Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Benton township hall, which was offered by Benton township Supervisor Catheryn Sirk.

Before the meeting a committee will obtain the traffic information from Eckenstahler and use it to get more public opposition to the project. Mrs. Sirk; Edward Strong, Royalton township resident; Matt Borre, owner of Ace Hardware at Scottdale; and Jack Kinney, owner of Consumers Asphalt & Concrete Co., Benton Harbor; volunteered to do the extra work.

The recommendation to close the road and build the new bridge is expected to be made at the highway commission's Feb. 23 meeting, and Gast suggested that a delegation from this area should attend.

He also said that writing letters to the commission and to the governor might be helpful. David W. Laetz, director of legislative affairs for the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, said the chamber would help fight the closing of M-139.

Your Welfare Is Harmed If It Hurts You To Work

Dr. Vince Ackerman

Every year elementary teachers attempt to fit children to the desks in their classrooms. The purpose, of course, being to help the child maintain good posture. Habits of poor posture leave a permanent imprint on the bony framework of the body. If a child is forced to sit at a desk which is either too high or too low for him he will have to have one shoulder higher than the other in order to write. This position could cause defects in the height of the shoulders and a curvature of the spine.

"Although the possibility for the development of poor posture in children is readily accepted, few people give thought to such a possibility in adults," says Dr. Ackerman of the Ackerman Chiropractic Center.

"Yet, frankly, there are all over the country, tall people who daily sit at office desks that are too low for them. Many of these people lean on one elbow most of the time."

He adds that "This habit will not cause poor posture, with distortions of the shoulders and spinal column, as quickly or to the same degree in adults as in children, but it will affect an adult's posture."

Dr. Ackerman points out there are a great number of people who daily use one arm and shoulder more than the other in excessive physical exertion. Salesman carry heavy brief cases with samples of merchandise; usually they form the habit of carrying them in the same hand every day, thus pulling the shoulder of that side to a lower level than the other.

"Watch the postman as he carries his heavy bag over his shoulder. Are his shoulders at equap level?" he asks. Then there are carpenters, painters, engineers, and people engaged in many other endeavors which require great, strenuous use of one arm in one definite motion, while the other arm is used only slightly.

What effects does this have?

"Because muscles which move the arm and shoulder attach to the spinal column, that section of the spinal column becomes an "anchor point," with each vigorous effort of that arm and shoulder pulling on it. Such repeated pulling on a section of the spinal column several times a day can gradually distort the spinal column," Dr. Ackerman notes.

"Needless to say, a person can't constantly change jobs to alter his work habits. But he can arrange for periodic examinations and to react immediately to any sign of shoulder or arm discomfort," says Dr. Ackerman.

"To keep plugging away with pain and discomfort and the same constant work habit, a person well could, as ironic as it might seem, be rendered unfit to hold the job he painfully labors to keep."

Dr. Ackerman maintains offices at 3918 Red Arrow Hwy., St. Joseph (Telephone 429-1700) ARS(c) 1973

BY ANGELA NOEL
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A plucky Japanese seaman, who risked death to make his sailing dream come true, guided his crippled 26-foot craft through the Golden Gate to end his solo voyage across the Pacific.

Tomio Ikegawa, 25, weary from his accident-plagued journey, stood barefoot Sunday night aboard the blue "Seagull's Friend," waving to about 60 reporters and well-wishers as a Coast Guard cutter escorted him to port.

Arriving 120 days after leaving Japan, he surprised reporters when he ducked into his cabin and emerged with a camera to snap pictures of the gathered crowd.

In the tradition of adventurers everywhere, the bearded young sailor, answering through an interpreter, said he made his solo trip "because I wanted to do it."

Gifts were waiting for the grinning Ikegawa as he ended his 4,800-mile mission — a bottle of West Indian rum from a fellow sailor here, a half-bottle of wine, some cheesecake and a bit of leftover steak.

"I thank all you people. You've been so nice. But I'm very tired," he said shyly. He was to spend the night in his boat and check in with customs in the morning.

With only two year's sea experience, Ikegawa set sail from Ehime, Japan, last Oct. 30, planning a seven-week trip to San Francisco. But his boat's mast was broken Nov. 24 in stormy 60-foot seas.

Ikegawa, a carpenter in a boatyard in Japan, said he rigged a makeshift mast to continue the trip, using his engine occasionally to correct course.

He had stored provisions, mostly rice, for 72 days, but ran out of water the last week and sipped sea water to survive. Still, he said, he managed to gain weight.

Charles Greenfield, a Belvedere resident with whom Ikegawa had corresponded before making the voyage, was on hand to greet him and deliver a letter from the young man's parents in Japan.

Greenfield said Ikegawa was inspired by an earlier voyage by a friend who sailed alone around the world.

Ikegawa's damaged boat was spotted last Thursday by a fishing trawler and towed by a Coast Guard cutter into port at Fort Bragg, a tiny coastal community about 120 miles north of here. The stubborn sailor set sail again after only 15 hours in port, turning thumbs down on an offered auto ride to San Francisco.

The harrowing trip across the world's largest ocean has inspired the young man onward. He said he plans to travel the Pacific again to return home.

"I want to go to Japan by sail," the young mariner said.

New Look Due At Car Air Bags

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Brock Adams says he plans to reexamine the use of air bags as automobile safety devices.

Auto efficiency, emission standards and safety must proceed together, Adams said, and the only way to both improve fuel use and reduce emissions is to drive smaller, lighter cars.

He added that smaller, lighter cars are not going to be as safe unless safety standards are built in.

Adams made his comments Sunday during an appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Air bags, which inflate automatically to protect the occupants of a car during a crash, have to be reconsidered in light of the fact that Congress has eliminated mandatory seat belt use, he said.

Former Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman announced in December that he would not require automakers to install air bags and other passive restraint devices in cars. But he did reach a voluntary agreement with at least one car maker to market some air bag-equipped autos to aquaint the public with them.

"I can't rationalize the decision he made," Adams said, commenting that air bags could save 10,000 lives a year.

On other topics, Adams said:

—He feels larger trucks would be a safety hazard and would damage highways.

—Some cities will likely lose some of their Amtrak service, but he doesn't think service to any city will be eliminated altogether.

—He is leaving in place Coleman's decision allowing the supersonic airliner Concorde to operate into the United States for 16 months.

'Not Likely'

World Waiting For Jacqueline Susann's Diary

Robin Adams Sloan welcomes questions from readers. While Sloan cannot provide individual answers, questions of general interest will be used in the column. Write to Robin Adams Sloan, care of this newspaper.

Q: I read that Jacqueline Susann left a very intimate diary when she died. Will it ever get published? — A.P., New Bedford, Mass.

A: That's for Irving Mansfield, Jacqueline's widower, to decide. Mansfield hasn't been able to bring himself to read the diary yet. He is considering either leaving it to be published 10 years after his death or perhaps even burning it. He knows the diary contains two tragic sections. One deals with the two years Jacqueline stayed in her room after discovering their only child, Guy, was autistic. The other contains entries his late wife made after she discovered she had cancer.

Q: Is it true Tony Curtis is writing a second novel and thinking about retiring from acting? — R.B., Metuchen, N.J.

A: Tony's not about to give up his acting career, though offers have thinned out for the 51-year-old performer. However, taking his cue perhaps from other actors - turned - novelists like Sterling Hayden and Tom Tryon, Curtis has finished his first novel which Doubleday is about to publish. Entitled "Kid Andrew Cody and Julie Sparrow," it's about a Western movie star and a Mafia gangster who have the same father but don't know it. Supposedly, Curtis' writing proved so good, Doubleday has asked him to start his second novel, pronto.

Q: Where did that wonderful British actor Terence Stamp disappear to? — L.T., Rochester, N.Y.

A: Stamp, 37, felt he wasn't getting offered the big movie roles he once had and he also got very tired of the celebrity life so he went off to a life of semi-seclusion in Rome. The actor lives simply and quietly and gets by making low budget Italian movies.

COURT JESTERS WANTED: Middle Eastern oil billionaires have their agents in Hollywood trying to book top stars to entertain at their palaces. No word yet on who has accepted a booking to play the palace but we do know this: Cher just turned down a fantastic offer.

Q: What are the chances of actress Jane Fonda ever doing another movie for her ex-husband, French director Roger Vadim? — C.V., Cleveland

A: We'd say unlikely. Jane, whose new movie is the racy comedy "Fun With Dick and Jane," is fussy about her choice of roles. Jane says working with Vadim would be impossible, "not, for personal reasons but because one 'Barbella' (the film she made with him) will last a lifetime."

Q: I've never read such personal pans as I have for Barbra Streisand in "A Star Is Born." How has it affected her? — R.M., Midland, Tex.

A: Like most celebrities, Barbra has developed a very thick skin, though her few friends report she is fuming. But don't worry, Barbra'll get over it, particularly since the movie has taken in $20,000,000 in its first month (it only cost $6,000,000), and the record album is going great. With that kind of financial success Streisand will definitely have the last laugh.

JOB OPENING: Jimmy Carter tapped the associate publisher of Rolling Stone, Anne Wexler, to be deputy undersecretary of commerce. Now Stone publisher Jann Wenner is carrying the line in the masthead of his magazine: "Associate Publisher: Looking for Perfect Person."

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Among the younger set in Hollywood, who are the biggest spenders? Would you believe Cher's daughter Chastity and Ryan O'Neal's daughter Tatum? Both of these youngsters have been known to go through the Beverly Hills boutiques buying everything in sight.

New Job Threatens State Senator's Anti-Tax Image

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Several years ago Pat McCollough voted for a gasoline tax increase, and his Senate colleagues gave him a standing ovation.

McCollough had a history of voting against tax hikes, and his "aye" astounded fellow senators. "They couldn't believe it," recalled Sen. David Plawecki, a close friend.

Sen. Patrick McCollough's reputation as pro-spending, anti-taxing may be endangered, however. Two weeks ago the Dearborn Democrat became chairman of the Senate Taxation Committee, which reviews every tax issue passing the legislature and many which do not.

McCollough has laid out ambitious plans to expand the committee, broaden its functions, and study revisions of Michigan tax laws. Other lawmakers say his new post means he must also stop instinctively protecting his constituents against tax increases for a larger view of state taxing policy.

"He will have to take a broader view," said Sen. Harry DeMaso of Battle Creek, the ranking committee Republican. "Maybe he'll get a different input into what we're trying to do."

Lawmakers also warn the committee may be hazardous to McCollough's political health. He is drumming up support for a likely run for the governor's office, and his first job was to rename the taxation committee the "Finance Committee" to reduce the negative image of the panel's title.

McCollough himself promises no specific changes in what he called Michigan's "shoddy, patch-work" tax system. But, he said, "I'd like to bring some sense to it."

"From an outsider's view, it doesn't hang together well," he said. "Whenever we need money, we raise taxes. We can use taxes for a positive effect on the problem areas of our state."

His overall goal, McCollough said, was to produce a tax system "fair to all groups," use taxes to spur economic development and to work for more federal money for Michigan — another task implied in the new "Finance Committee" title.

To that end, McCollough said he would like to expand the five-man committee to seven or eight, and appoint subcommittees to study the business tax, income tax and property tax. Whatever pace he sets, it should be faster than that followed by Sen. John Bowman, the former chairman who resigned to become a lobbyist this month.

McCollough rejects his anti-tax image, saying he's "voted for 50 per cent of all the taxes around here." He has voted against two income tax increases, but also against a stated income tax rollback and for the gas tax and Single Business Tax.

And he downplays the grip of his constituents in largely conservative Dearborn and other Wayne County suburbs, where Ford Motor Co. shoulders the tax burden so residential property can go under-assessed.

"My people are like every district," he said. "They're concerned about tax-base sharing and they're concerned about equalization by class." The latter means assessing private homes and other property at half of cash value separately, instead of combining property and assessing one class higher than another.

McCollough, 34, was first elected in 1970. He is an attorney with a background in tax and municipal law.

When he first came to the legislature, he was under the strong influence of his mother, Rep. Lucille McCollough, who has served in the House since 1953 without missing a day. But his friends say he has gone his own way more lately, and is more willing to consider more controversial legislation.

And last month, through a scheduling mistake, he missed his first session since elected. He admitted it was a relief to break his attendance string.

McCollough is tall and handsome and comes off well before crowds. He has a smooth, courteous — almost courtly — manner, which critics say they find downright slippery and somewhat superficial.

SEN. PATRICK McCOLLOUGH
New committee chief

Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, says McCollough is "sincere about his goals" but that he's "not a detail man." While pursuing broad objectives, he explained, McCollough often leaves the spadework and bill-writing to his staff and other lawmakers.

McCollough has floor-managed bills on political reform and election laws, and helped form a task force on efficiency which won the governor's support. He also pushed through a bill on compensation for crime victims.

"If he has any failing, it's that he's too cautious," said another close friend, Sen. John Hertel, D-Harper Woods. "He gathers all the information and advice he can — I get impatient with him. But he's a reformer who is able to do it without turning off the older members of the Senate."

McCollough makes no secret of his ambition to be governor. He is traveling around the state to speak before groups and set up local organizations. And despite the hazards of chairing the committee on taxes, he says: "If you do a good job, you merit advancement."

McCollough was instrumental in dealing a severe setback to one of his likely rivals, Sen. William Fitzgerald, D-Detroit. McCollough was at the middle of the coup which replaced Fitzgerald as majority leader with Sen. William Faust of Westland.

But McCollough could not attract enough votes to become leader himself. And it will take more than skilled management of the Finance Committee to get the votes needed for the Democratic nomination.

Peppiles, 30, of 630 Green avenue, Benton Harbor, on a charge of concealing or removing mortgaged property by leaving the area without providing a new forwarding address and failing to make payments to Peoples State Bank for an auto loan, on or about Jan. 3, 1977. Bond was set at $5,000.

David Ronald Timothy Rogers, 21, of 109 Sherman street, Galien, pleaded innocent on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property under $100, a .32 caliber pistol, Jan. 31 in Galien. He was also sentenced to 90 days in jail for a probation violation for failing to pay fines and costs and failing to report to the probation office and changing his address without notifying the department.

Elizabeth M. Murphy, 40, of 1392 Barron Lake road, Niles, 90 days in jail for conspiracy to commit larceny, reduced from larceny in a building, at K-mart Dec. 8.

Ask Your Dentist

By ALFRED E. SEYLER, D.D.S.

Q. I have 12 upper teeth of my own, in good condition according to my dentist. However, I have only three lower teeth and they are very loose, with bad pyorrhea. The dentist says they must come out. But he also told me that it is unsatisfactory to make a lower denture which will have to be worn and used with natural upper teeth. I certainly don't want to have my good teeth pulled out so I can have two sets of false teeth, that is, upper and lower. Do you think I am wrong? M.I.

A. I agree with you. However, your dentist is correct in warning you that you may have a problem. Denture specialists tell us that even though a lower denture can be made to oppose upper natural teeth, it is not wise to do it except in special cases. They point out that the bone of the lower jaw — that is, the ridge on which the denture rests, is quite small in comparison to the upper jaw with natural teeth, therefore, the lower jaw will have more stress placed on it and the lower denture will no doubt require more adjustments and relining as time goes on.

Biting and chewing pressure exerted by natural teeth chewing together varies from 150 to 250 pounds per square inch. Dentures usually exert 20-30 pounds per square inch. Quite a difference. When upper natural teeth work against a lower denture the chewing force is probably at least 100 pounds per square inch. That much chewing will tend to wear the lower ridge, which means poor bony support and stability for the denture.

Taking everything into consideration, it is my opinion you should have a lower denture made. After all, you can always go to a full denture for your upper jaw, if your experience tells you it is necessary and since both you and your dentist realize you are really taking a calculated risk, there should be no complaints on your part when relinings or remaking of the denture becomes necessary.

Q. I have two children wearing orthodontic braces. Do you think an electric toothbrush is better than an ordinary toothbrush to help them keep their appliances clean? K.S.L.

A. An electric toothbrush used properly and regularly may help your children clean their orthodontic appliances better, but it won't solve the problems of the careless or infrequent tooth-brusher.

Your dentist should advise you what type of an electric brush to buy. Some brushes have an up and down motion only for the bristles of the head, others have a back and forth movement in addition to the up and down.

Soviet Dissident Leader Appeals

MOSCOW (AP) — Dissident leader Andrei Sakharov is appealing for worldwide support for Alexander Ginzburg, an activist arrested last week by Soviet security police.

"We appeal to everyone who agrees with us that defense of human rights is essential for the preservation of peace," the physicist and winner of the 1975 Nobel peace prize said in a statement Sunday. "Our common duty is to defend Alexander Ginzburg."

TV Film Offers A 'Gentle Lift'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Okay, you see the TV listing for a drama about mental retardation and think, "Nope, too depressing." But give NBC's "Emily, Emily" a try tonight. It'll give you a gentle lift.

It's about how a retarded young man, Freddie Putnam, 19, learns to face the outside world, to live with his handicap, to be a useful, productive human, not a hidden-away object of pity and guilt. Thomas Hulce, a gifted actor, plays Freddie and does it superbly, with a gentle sense of innocent joy and sadness that may vaguely remind you — and I don't mean this disparagingly — of the late Stan Laurel.

John Forsythe is cast as his overprotective father, a widower, a wealthy architect who has given his handicapped son everything but the chance to set out on his own, to live his own life.

The answer begins when high school guidance counselor (James Farentino) sees young Freddie trying to play with younger kids at a football practice session. He takes the lad home, talks to his father, overcomes Forsythe's reluctance to let Freddie take special training — at Midstep, a halfway house for mentally retarded young adults — that will enable the youth to live a productive life of his own.

At Midstep, run by Farentino, Freddie meets not only his own kind but also Emily Ward, a young graduate student who works there while studying for her master's degree in psychology.

In the course of teaching Freddie the basics of adult life — how to hold a job, drive a car, buy groceries — she becomes perhaps too involved, too caring. And he falls in love with her.

Mongoloid Youth Is Able To Escape From Social Prison

By JOHN F. HEAD

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — As recently as 50 years ago, a person like Roger Messerly could have spent his entire life in prison without hope of parole or probation.

There were few institutions for the mentally and physically impaired, and authorities felt they had to put such people where they did not come into contact with "normal" society.

Even today, many people like Roger are kept in private homes and state and private intitutions, and not allowed to mingle with the outside world. They still are social prisoners.

Instead, Roger and several others who are mentally or physically impaired have departed for Steamboat Springs, Colo., for the first International Winter Special Olympics.

Messerly, 19, is a victim of Down's syndrome. In layman's terms, he is a mongoloid. His capacity for learning is impaired, but it hasn't affected his desire or willingness to compete.

Roger lives with his parents in Grand Blanc Township and attends Grand Blanc High School. He has two brothers, Eric and Mark, and a sister, Janet.

He will be graduated from high school in June 1978. That alone would be a remarkable achievement for a person with Roger's affliction, but he and his family have done much more.

"Roger is independent," his mother says. "He is totally self-sufficient and can take care of himself. We have tried to teach him to be self-reliant because we won't be around to take care of him forever.

"Between the special education programs in the Grand Blanc schools and the Special Olympics programs, Roger has made more progress than anyone ever dreamed when he was born.

"Many children born with Down's syndrome are put in institutions under the advice of doctors. We couldn't see doing that unless Roger became a problem to our entire family.

"Thank God, he has been such an asset that the thought has never crossed our minds in the past 19 years."

The key words that keep appearing in the Messerlys' discussion of Roger are "opportunity" and "stimulation."

"Without the Special Olympics program, Roger would never have had any of the experiences his brothers and sisters have had," says Mrs. Messerly.

"Until we got involved with the Special Olympics when it began five years ago, we had only allowed Roger to learn how to swim. I guess we were guilty of being a little overprotective of him.

"Now he is one of the best long-distance swimmers in the Special Olympics program, is the varsity wrestling team manager, holds several part-time jobs and even was a member of Boy Scout Troop 388, the Eagle Patrol here. The transformation is astounding."

The Messerlys give lavish praise to Margaret Hill, director of the Grand Blanc Special Education Program, and Roger Griffith, Roger's coach and special education teacher.

"Those two have done as much for our whole family as they have done for Roger," says Mrs. Messerly. "Mrs. Hill's understanding and patience, her insight and cooperation have been invaluable to all of us.

"Roger Griffith is an amazing person. He has such boundless enthusiasm and energy, such initiative and enterprise that he is contagious.

"Mr. Griffith was the first one that suggested the children use calculators to do their math.

"Now, with the practical solution of the pocket calculators, Roger can make his own purchases, balance his own checkbook, keep track of his bills and function as easily as you or I," Mrs. Messerly says.

WHY?

The Congo, the first week in January, 1963.

Albert Verbrugghe, a Belgian cement worker, is driving down a quiet street with his wife and another woman in the copper town of Jadotsville. Suddenly ...

Machine gun fire.

Verbrugghe stumbles from his car. Inside, his wife is already dead and the other woman is dying. Blood streaming from a wound under his eye, he cries out:

"Why, why, why?" ...

The anguished question was not new to emerging Africa, especially the Congo, where senseless killing and bedlam marked the first 30 months of independence.

The Congo was set free in 1960 after 80 years of frequently harsh and always profitable rule by the Belgians. It had no experience in self-government and no time to learn. It was hurried overnight from the slow step of the ox to the roar of the jet. A country one-third the size of the U.S., it had not a single Congolese college graduate, not one Congolese doctor or lawyer, engineer or military officer or anybody trained in government.

And many natives were led to believe that, with independence, they would immediately inherit the white man's world, his house, his car, his woman. Thus the new Republic of the Congo began in a nightmare of killing, looting and rape, and Europeans fled by the thousands.

Postal clerks became cabinet ministers and government became a roaring farce played by the Marx brothers and no one knew the size of the army because many garrisons existed only on paper while the local commanders pocketed the payroll. Soldiers mutinied or refused to fight or left a vital roadblock because it was raining or it was Sunday or it was after five o'clock. Teachers were unpaid for two years in many places because higher authority had gotten to the payroll first. The feuds of ancient tribalism continued and in one 300-mile stretch of railroad the train crew had to be changed nine times to avoid slaughter.

In Katanga, the copper-rich province which provided half the revenue for the central government, Moishe Tshombe led a secessionist movement. Without Katanga, where Belgium and England were heavily invested, the new republic would fall apart. United Nations troops came in at the behest of the central government, which cried of "colonialist machinations."

And so, in the first week of January, 1963, nervous Indian troops opened fire on a Volkswagen on a quiet street in Jadotsville. Why? Because, they said, the driver refused to halt for a routine inspection.

Score One For Finns

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — The Northern Michigan University board of control has approved establishing an institute for Finnish-American studies. The board took the action on proposals by Dale Spade and Kenrick Thompson of the school's sociology department. The professors said establishing an institute is appropriate since the Upper Peninsula has the largest concentration of people of Finnish descent in the United States. The project is the first in the nation to focus on Finnish-Americans.

Pagna will speak during the Southwestern Michigan chapter of the SOCIETY OF Die Casting Engineers' "Education Night," according to Paul C. Koehneke, of Dynac Corp., St. Joseph.

Three students each from 15 area high schools and colleges, and one instructor from each school, will be special guests of the chapter meeting. The public also is invited. Tickets for non-members are $9 and must be reserved by Thursday noon by contacting Koehneke at work.

He and Parseghian went to Notre Dame together in 1964. They resigned together after 11 seasons.

Pagna is a broadcaster during football season, in the insurance business with Parseghian and a frequent speaker at banquets and meetings. He is 45.

Thursday's meeting will begin with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. Dinner is scheduled to begin at 7:15.

Lanier Touches Off Brawl In Piston Win Over KC

From Associated Press

The Detroit Pistons, who've spent most of the season squabbling and scrapping among themselves as the National Basketball Association's answer to baseball's Oakland A's, turned their attention to the Kansas City Kings in a bench-clearing brawl touched off by Detroit's usually mild-mannered center, Bob Lanier.

"I got the rebound after (Kings' center) Jim Eakins had shot and was about to release the ball," Lanier said of the third-quarter flare-up. "I looked at Eakins and I saw his fist was balled up. I figured a guy can either duck or swing."

Lanier swung. First, a backhand right to the head knocked Eakins off balance. That was followed by a looping left that sent the Kings' center to the hardwood.

As Eakins tried to fight his way off the floor, Kansas City forward Bill Robinzine entered the melee and he and Lanier wrestled their way into the stands. Both benches emptied, seven Pistons and six Kings exposing themselves to $150 fines in order to join the action.

After peace was restored, Lanier was ejected by the officials. But it didn't matter as Detroit went on to outscore the Kings 40-30 in the third quarter enroute to a 130-111 victory.

"I was just trying to protect myself," insisted the 6-foot-11, 260-pound Lanier, who outweighs Eakins by some 30 pounds. "I don't like to fight and this is the first one I've had in a long time. In fact, I think this is the first time I was thrown out of a game."

Eakins, who suffered a slight cut under his left eye, had no comment about the fightLanier scored 20 points before he was ejected, with Detroit ahead 78-62. Howard Porter added 18 and Ralph Simpson and M.L. Carr 17 each.

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday, Philadelphia beat Los Angeles 102-97, New Orleans defeated Houston 99-90, Phoenix downed Denver 115-104, the New York Nets trimmed Cleveland 94-90, Boston handled Buffalo 113-97, Indiana outscored Chicago 111-99 and Seattle topped Milwaukee 107-99.

Reserve forward Steve Mix, who has spent the season in the shadows of all-stars Julius Erving and George McGinnis, had 37 points as the 76ers knocked the Lakers out of first place in the Pacific Division.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 26 points and grabbed 16 rebounds, but no other Laker could score more than 15 points.

Pete Maravich scored 23 points in the first period, 35 in the first half and 43 for the game to help New Orleans to its sixth straight home victory. Meanwhile, Jazz forward E.C. Coleman prevented the Rockets' leading scorer, Rudy Tomjanovich, from scoring a single basket and held him to just one point.

The guards did the damage for Phoenix, Paul Westphal scoring a season-high 32 points and rookie Ron Lee adding a career-high 30 in the nationally televised game. The Nuggets went ahead 63-62 with 8:40 to go in the third quarter, but Westphal's 13 points helped the Suns edge ahead 87-82 at the end of the third quarter.

The Nets posted their third straight victory behind a career-high 37 points by Bubbles Hawkins, a second-year guard who was picked up as a free agent earlier this season.

San Antonio led 57-45 at the half, built the lead to 20 in the third period and stayed comfortably in front behind Louie Dampier's 11 fourth-quarterpoints. Larry Kenon led San Antonio with 24 points and George Gervin had 23.

Boston snapped an 86-86 with a 14-2 burst midway through the final period, John Havlicek and Jo Jo White scoring three baskets each and Dave Cowens one in the spurt. Cowens led Boston with 28 points.

Indiana led 26-20 after one period and stayed in front as Billy Knight scored 23 points and Wil Jones added 20.

Guard Fred Brown came off the bench to score 22 points, including eight in the last period, to share scoring honors with Bruce Seals as Seattle handed Milwaukee its fourth consecutive loss — its 12th in 14 games.

U-M, Gophers In Showdown

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seventh-ranked Michigan meets No. 10 Minnesota tonight in a showdown between the leaders of the Big Ten Conference.

Michigan crushed the Ohio State Buckeyes 93-72 Saturday and heads into the matchup leading the league with a 10-1 record. Minnesota is second with 7-1, but could take over first with a triumph.

Illinois knocked Purdue temporarily out of the running Saturday with a 71-70 victory in the final 25 seconds as Audie Matthews connected as the final buzzer went off.

"It's a good feeling to finally blow someone out. It had been so long," said Michigan guard Steve Grote, after Saturday's victory.

"The key was we couldn't handle their pressure and they forced us into too many turnovers," Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller said.

All-American Kent Benson scored 35 points to lead Indiana to an 81-79 victory at Michigan State while Ronnie Lester and Bruce King combined for 37 points to lead Iowa's Hawkeyes past Wisconsin 80-73.

Minnesota downed nothwesern 79-53.

In addition to the Michigan-Minnesota game Monday night, Michigan State will be at Iowa but the focus will be on the game in Minneapolis with Big Ten backers pulling for Michigan.

The reason is that Minnesota is on probation and not eligible for the NCAA Tournament and if the Gophers finish first or second, it could cost the Big Ten a chance of placing two teams in the 32-team field.

Last year Indiana finished first and Michigan second and both teams not only were selected but ended up playing each other for the national championship won by Indiana.

If Minnesota should finish first or second, the NCAA probably would not select a third place team out of the conference for a tournament berth, especially with a number of powerful independents from the Midwest vying for a spot in the field.

Minnesota, however, has launched what could be a backbreaking portion of the Gopher schedule. Beginning with last Saturday's victory over Northwestern, the Gophers must play seven games in 14 days. The schedule includes dates at Ohio State, at Iowa, at Michigan State and at Michigan.

Thursday night's game against Ohio State is listed on the schedule as being at Minnesota but this is the game that was switched when Ohio State gave up its home date against the Gophers Jan. 29 and played at Minnesota because of the energy shortage in the state of Ohio. Minnesota won the game 77-67.

Olympics On Minds Of Skate Champs

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The nationals are over, the World Championships are on the horizon, but most of the gold medalists have Olympics on the mind.

Yes, the 1980 Olympics remain the major motivation for American amateur figure skaters. And in skating, before the lucrative ice shows, will come the Lake Placid Games.

Tai Babilonia, who teamed with Randy Gardner to win the senior pairs title, was asked on a biographical form what her plans were for future skating.

She simply wrote: "Olympic gold medal."

Linda Fratianne, the senior women's champion, was asked if she's thinking ahead to signing a pro contract. She laughed, and her coach, Frank Carroll, jumped in. "She wants to stay on until the Olympics," he said.

Of the gold medalists in the major events here at the U.S Figure Skating Championships, only Charles Tickner was uncertain whether he would skate in circles until 1980.

"I just don't know what I'll do," he said Friday after winning the men's title with an artistic skating display that earned him three perfect marks. "I just have to play it one year at a time."

Tickner, from Littleton, Colo., is 23, ancient for American figure skaters who know shaving only as a sliver of ice. But the rest of America's World Championship and Olympic hopefuls are young and eager enough to wait for the 1980 Games.

As good as they are now, they can only get better after experiencing international competition like the World Championships in Tokyo March 1-5.

In the pairs competition, the U.S. will be sending its top three teams, champion Tai Babilonia, 16, Mission Hills, Calif., and Randy Gardner, 19, Los Angeles; second-place finishers Gail Hamula and Frank Sweiding of Colorado Springs, Colo., and the No. 3 couple, Sheryl Franks, Lexington, Mass., and Michael Botticelli, Weston, Mass.

"The Russians have age and seasoning in their favor," said John Nicks, coach of the Babilonia-Gardner team. "But I think Randy and Tai are the best in musical interpretation, line, form and artistry.

"If the Russians make a slip and if Tai and Randy skate as well as I feel they can, there could be new world champions."

Tickner, who has never competed in a world championships, will lead a strong trio of senior men to Tokyo, including runnerup Scott Cramer of Colorado Springs, Colo. and David Santee, Park Ridge, Ill.

The American women's team in Tokyo will include Miss Fratianne, 16, Northridge, Calif.; runnerup Barbie Smith, 18, Denver, and Wendy Burge, 19, Colorado Springs.

In ice dancing, Judi Genovesi of Vernon, Conn., and Kent Weigle of West Hartford, Conn., who won the national title here, and Susan Kelley and Andrew Strokoff of Claymont, Del., will also represent the U.S. in Tokyo.

Western Am Champ Bean Fourth

Lietzke Hawaiian Winner

HONOLULU (AP) — Bruce Lietzke, suddenly one of pro golf's brightest young stars, says he needs some time off.

"I need to go home and think this thing out," the hard-hitting 25-year-old Texan said after scoring his second victory of the young season Sunday in the Hawaiian Open.

"I thought I was going to have to rearrange my schedule after winning Tucson (last month, his first pro title), but now I've really got to sit down and figure out where I'm going, what my goals are, what I'm going to do."

First, however, he puts the best record of the season on the line this week in the $200,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic and will play the following week in Los Angeles. After that, however, things are in doubt.

"I've never been overseas but I have a few things lined up now. I'm going to play in Japan and maybe Australia and New Zealand. I'm not sure about the British Open. It just depends on how many trips overseas I decide to make."

Lietzke, who added the Masters, the PGA and the Tournament of Champions to his schedule after winning Tucson, now has to fit in the World Series of Golf. As a multiple winner he joins Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson and World Cup winner Ernesto Perez Acosta as the only four men now eligible for that fall classic.

Lietzke, staked to this victory when old pro Don January blew the lead with a double bogey five on the 71st hole, had a final 68, three under par, and a 273 total, 15 under on the 7,234-yard Waialae Country Club course.

In four starts this season he now has finished fourth, first, 12th and first. The $48,000 he collected from the total purse of $240,000 boosted him into the season's money-winning lead with $100,550, more than he'd won in his two previous years on the tour.

"I don't know what to say. I'd have thought only one or two guys could have won this much this early in the season. I really can't explain it," he said.

A good portion of it involves his vast length off the tee. He played the par fives in this tournament 15 under and closed out the victory with a four-iron second shot to the par-five 18th and a 12-foot putt for an eagle.

That put him three strokes in front of January and Japanese star Takashi Murakami, tied for second at 276. Murakami had a closing 69 in the tropic weather and January matched par 72.

Andy Bean, the 1975 Western Am champ, with a 69, was fourth at 277. Watson, who had won two in a row coming into this one, tied for fifth at 278 with Steve Melnyk, Bill Kratzert and Honolulu pro Lance Suzuki, who had the best round of the final day, a 66.

Bobcat Grapplers Take Bud Crown

Hoopes, Foulkes Win For SJ

By JOHN VANDEN HEEDE
Sports Editor

Brandywine wrestlers are savoring their fourth straight Blossomland championship, while Lakeshore matmen are already anxiously waiting for next year.

Coach Ron Bailey's powerful Bobcats, who are on their way to what could become the best season in school history, easily won the conference championship on their home mat Saturday night by outpointing second-place Lakeshore 187-152.

The senior-dominated Brandywine squad, which has had to share the crown with the Lancers the past two seasons, placed eight individual champions, the same as the young Lakeshore team of coach Bruce Bittenbender.

Kelly Low, Mitch Jeffrey and Mike McCombs repeated as champions for Brandywine, and Scott Adams, a runner up a year ago, added the other Bobcat individual crown.

"I told our kids this week that this was going to be the last time they were ever going to wrestle at Brandywine, and it turned them on," declared Bailey. "Some of them had tears in their eyes."

Coming through with individual championships for Lakeshore were Doug Smith, Terry Runge, Jamie Lingle and Joe Rodriguez. Runge, the only Lancer senior, took his third straight championship.

"Next year they (the Lancers) are going to be tough....tough," added Bailey.

In other conference action, St. Joseph had two grapplers — Don Hoopes at 178, and heavyweight Jim Foulkes — win their weight classes in the Big Seven meet at Loy Norrix. As a team, the Bears finished fourth with 83 points and Niles was last with 57 points. Battle Creek Lakeview took the team title with 178.

Gus Thaler of South Haven won the 145-pound class to help the Rams take fifth place in the Wolverine meet at Gull Lake. Paw Paw's Vic Vukorpa was tops in the 112-pound class as the Redskins ended up eighth. Vicksburg was the team champion.

Benton Harbor finished last in the tough LMAC meet at Muskegon Catholic which was won by Mona Shores. Norman Doyle was the only Tiger to make it to the finals and he was beaten in the 165-pound class by Mike Cribbs.

Other champions in the Blossomland meet were Cassopolis' Mark Williams and Wendall Mitchum, Dowagiac's Jim Kurdlemeyer, Buchanan's Mark Fisher and Edwardsburg's Dan Parsons.

The only defending champion to lose was Brandywine's Steve Kersch. Lakeshore's Smith, who lost to Kersch in the Blossomland championship clash last year, decisioned the Brandywine standout by a 4-2 margin.

"They always have close matches," said Bittenbender, who recalled Kersch won by a 4-2 margin last year. In two seasons, Smith has now edged Kersch in four of five matches.

Kersch took a 2-0 first round lead Saturday night with a takedown, but Smith quickly knotted the score with a reversal. He then won it with another reversal in the last round.

Kurdlemeyer and Jeffrey won all their matches by pins, while Runge, Lingle, McCombs and Adams won their championship matches with shutouts.

Adams blanked Cassopolis' Vince Weatherspoon, who carried a 15-0 record into the finals, by a 4-0 margin at 178 pounds.

Also coming up with a surprise win was Parsons, the 119-pound champion. In the preliminaries, he defeated Brandywine's Murray Wilson, a runner up a year ago and the holder of a 21-2-0 record entering Saturday night's competition, by a 3-1 count.

Lakeshore's Rodriguez had one of the most thrilling matches of the night. He broke a 2-2 tie with just 17 seconds left with an escape. He then quickly added a takedown for a 5-2 triumph.

"He's somewhat of a surprise," stated Bittenbender. "He has just been coming on the last three weeks." (Rodriguez is now 25-8-1 on the season.)

The victories by Lingle and Smith kept them on top among southwestern Michigan wrestling leaders. Lingle is now 32-0 and Smith 31-0, including 27 pins. Teammate Runge stands at 30-3-0.

The Blossomland decides its team championship by combining the conference meet with dual results. Brandywine went 7-0 in duals and has clinched the overall team title, but all other teams have postponements to make up before the rest of the standings can be decided.

St. Joseph pulled a pair of firsts in finishing fourth in the league. This is the first time the Bears have had two conference champs in the same year and the first time they have had a junior conference champ (Don Hoopes).

The junior tore through the 178-pound class. He pinned Greg Askin of Portage Northern in 1:02 in the first round and then decisioned Jim Burnham from Lakeview by an 8-4 score in the second round.

Hoopes then pinned Tim Mallett of Niles in the championship round in 2:26.

Jim Foulkes had a little bit rougher time in the always tough heavyweight bracket. He drew a first round bye and then pinned Kermit Harris from Loy Norrix in 3:59 to get to the finals.

Mark Oliver of Lakeview and Foulkes were tied in the third and it looked like it would be decided in an overtime period. But the Bears' big man took Oliver down with two seconds left in regulation to register a 6-4 victory.

Brian Lannon of St. Joseph wasn't as fortunate as Hoopes and Foulkes. He beat Steve Burton of Portage Northern 6-0 in the first round and then pinned Chris Golland of Portage Central in 3:55 of the second round. But he lost in the finals to Holland's Lewis Boven by a 7-2 score.

Niles only had Mallett make it to the finals.

Even though the dual meet schedule isn't completed, Lakeview will win the league championship which is based on the outcome of the dual and league meets. The best St. Joseph could do is third and the worst the Bears could finish is fourth. Niles will either be fifth or sixth.

Vukorpa pinned Scott Hickman of Otsego in 41 seconds to win his first round match. He then decisioned Dean Myers of Gull Lake 4-0 to get to the finals where he beat Bruce Cavault of Allegan 5-4.

South Haven's Thaler beat Bob Kuiper of Plainwell 8-6 and Todd Harrison of Vicksburg 7-2 to get into the championship round. There he beat Greg Drobney of Otsego 5-1.

Dave Gaarde and Harold Shelton, who was unseeded, and Shelby Gamble of South Haven all lost their championship matches.

Benton Harbor's Doyle drew a first round bye and then beat Joe Salisz of Muskegon Catholic 15-15 in the second round. But he was pinned by Mike Cribbs in the finals in 3:34.

Carl Allison and Ray Turner of the Tigers did come through with consolation bracket wins.

Eau Claire Captures Wrestling Invitational

EAU CLAIRE — The wrestling team of Eau Claire tuned up for next weekend's district tournament by winning the Fourth Annual Eau Claire Invitational here Saturday.

The Beavers amassed 191 points, far outdistancing second place Berrien Springs which totaled 141. Covert was third with 91, Watervliet was fourth with 86 points, Bloomingdale finished fifth with 61, Martin was seventh at 49 and Bridgman eighth with 23.

There were to be eight more teams at the tourney which was originally slated to be held last weekend. But the snow forced the postponement of the invitational and six of the eight already were involved in conference matches.

Eau Claire had seven champions in the tourney including Kevin Rice, Bill and Joe Simaz, Frank McCain, John Hopkins, Dave Vircott and Dennis Durham.

Hopkins was voted the invitational's outstanding grappler as the freshman topped Scott Schnebly of Watervliet by a 10-0 score in the first round and then advanced to the finals with a judges' decision victory over Dan Berndt of Bridgman.

One of the wildest weight classes had to be the 178-pound division. Curtis Bolton of Eau Claire beat Michael Jones of Covert 13-11 in the consolation finals. By the luck of the draw, that pair wrestled each other in the opening round with Bolton also winning that match by the unbelievable score of 26-23.

Harbor Cuts Down Towering Gary Emerson

Tigers Pull Out Another Victory

By JACK WALKDEN
Staff Sports Writer

Benton Harbor's Tigers are alive and well, thank you.

Earl McKee's quintet pulled out another victory in the fleeting seconds Saturday night, shocking Gary Emerson 69-67 at the Colfax Gym.

The win was the third straight for Benton Harbor, all coming in the closing seconds. And McKee couldn't have been happier.

"We like it like that," he beamed. "It's a super victory and we'll take it. We tried to be a team. We've gotten to the point where we understand each other and talk to each other. We have confidence in each other.

"We stayed together the entire game. Whatever we did, we did it together."

It was a sparkling performance for the Tigers, now 8-6 on the year. The Emerson front line consisted of 7-1 Wallace Bryant, 6-7½ Frank Smith and 6-7 Dexter Grisby. But the Benton Harbor team effort offset the great height disadvantage.

And the heroes were many for Benton Harbor as six players scored at least eight points. Guard Steve McNutt led the way with 17 points and 11 assists.

"We've almost come to take for granted Steve's play for us," McKee said. "He has the ability to take control of the flow of the game. And he helps to get things started that we want."

It was McNutt who ended the last Emerson hope in the final three seconds. With nine seconds left, Keith Taylor hit the first of a one-and-one to give the Tigers the final 69-67 margin. But Taylor missed the second and Smith pulled down the rebound.

The outlet pass went to guard Robert Jenkins, who dribbled into the forecourt and threw up a 12-footer from the left side of the lane. McNutt partially deflected the shot, however, and James Potts pulled down the rebound to preserve the victory.

Ronald Page added 14 for Benton Harbor and Keith Taylor tallied 13, including nine in the decisive fourth quarter.

It was Taylor who gave the Tigers the lead for good. His basket at the 1:22 mark gave Benton Harbor a 67-66 margin.

"Keith came to life in the final quarter," McKee said. "He stayed aggressive on defense. He was covering the big man and he had to front him. In the second half we tried to set up a situation where we would take the base line away from him and make him come back to his left.

"We had to keep pressure on him all the time. We wanted to deny him the ball and keep him away from the basket."

Even the strong defense only held the towering Bryant down. Bryant tallied 27 points, including 12 in the second quarter. Smith added 12 and Jenkins had 10 for Emerson.

The game saw 13 ties and 11 lead changes. The contest was tied 21-21 after the opening quarter and Benton Harbor moved on top 40-39 at halftime. Emerson rallied to take a 53-51 lead after three periods.

Emerson rolled out to a 62-55 margin with 4:24 left in the game, but it was there that coach Earl Smith made a fatal error. Smith decided to go into a stall to bring the Tigers out of their zone.

"When they came out and tried to hold the ball, it brought us back to life," McKee said. "We made a lot of mental mistakes to open the second half. We got awful sluggish for a while.

"When they tried to hold the ball we switched to our half-court trap. It made us more aggressive. When we got to be more aggressive, we began to move."

And move Benton Harbor did, as the Tigers scored eight straight points to grab a 63-62 edge. The game went back and forth from there.

The Tigers hit a respectable 29 of 64 from the floor for 45 per cent. Emerson connected on 29 of 72 for 40 per cent.

The game, in effect, was won at the free throw line where Benton Harbor hit on 11 of 20 (55 per cent) to Emerson's nine of 16 (56 per cent).

Emerson held a 47-40 board edge as Smith pulled down 12, Grisby 10 and Bryant nine. Derrick Joseph grabbed 11 for the Tigers.

Benton Harbor turned the ball over 18 times to 23 for Emerson. Emerson.

The Tiger junior varsity hiked its record to 12-2 with a narrow 68-67 win in the preliminary. Michael Gillespie poured in 28 for the winners, while Tony Joseph added 13 and Ray Jones 11.

Rams Post Big Road Win

Gamble Pours In 26 Points At Otsego

OTSEGO — South Haven finally snapped its road jinx here Saturday night.

And in the process the Rams remained in the thick of the Wolverine conference race.

South Haven rolled past Otsego 82-61 to stay in a tie with Plainwell and Comstock for the league lead, all with 8-3 records. South Haven hosts Plainwell Tuesday.

"The Plainwell game is a big one for us," Ram coach M. H. White said. "But these last two have been big games, too."

South Haven, which blasted Allegan Friday night at home, had posted a miserable 2-3 league road record entering Saturday's game. And the two wins were over the Wolverine's two worst teams, Vicksburg and Three Rivers.

But the Rams came to play against Otsego, which fell out of the league race at 5-6.

William Gamble paced the winners with 26 points, his 22nd straight game in double digits. Mike Grimes added 14 and Greg Colton had 12.

Jim Luoma tallied 22 for the losers.

South Haven broke open a close game by outscoring Otsego 22-11 in the second quarter for a 43-29 halftime edge. The Rams were never seriously threatened after that.

Guard Roger Getman dished out eight assists and Grimes had seven and White said "their ballhandling saved us."

South Haven hit a good 32 of 67 from the floor (48 per cent) and 18 of 32 from the foul line (56 per cent). Otsego canned 26 of 67 field goal attempts for 39 per cent and just nine of 20 charity tosses (45 per cent).

The Rams held a 47-46 rebounding advantage with Gamble pulling down 13 carons and Grimes adding 12.

South Haven turned the ball over 24 times to 26 for Otsego.

South Haven's junior varsity upped its record to 11-3 with a 64-56 win in the preliminary.

Michigan Lutheran Gets By St. Joseph Seminary

Michigan Lutheran won its basketball game against St. Joseph Seminary Saturday night...but Titans' coach John Eggert wasn't that pleased with it.

Lutheran upped its season's mark to 8-5 with a 46-33 victory over St. Joseph at the Titans' gym.

"We're just not together," Eggert stated. "We made some mistakes in throwing the ball away. We didn't run our plays right.

"Our defense just plain and simple has to get back in gear."

The reason for the low scoring game wasn't the defenses, according to Eggert. "Both teams played poorly on offense," he said. "We played just well enough to win."

Robert Guse came back after missing most of Friday night's game and led all scorers with 17 points. Randy Wolf added 10 as the only other Titan in double figures.

Mike Arents had 11 for St. Joseph and Mike Stein netted 10.

Michigan Lutheran made 21 of 55 field goal attempts (38.2 per cent) while St. Joseph managed 14 of 47 tries (29.8).

The Titans held a 39-29 board edge with Wolf getting nine. St. Joseph committed 23 turnovers to 20 for Lutheran.

The score was tied at eight-apiece after the first quarter but Lutheran went out to a 20-17 halftime lead. The Titans led 31-21 after three quarters.

Lutheran's junior varsity won its first game of the season when it beat St. Joseph 47-31. John Briney led the charge with 17 points.

But Bloomingdale outscored Lawrence 16-10 in the third stanza to hold a 39-35 lead.

"We were just flat in the third quarter," Smith said. "We made just five of 19 from the floor."

Howie Mutz paced the Bees with 20 points, including eight of 10 free throw chances. Guard Bill Moreland added 19 and Bob Linke tallied 17. Linke has now scored 945 career points, just seven away from the Bridgman record held by Bob Ackerman. Phil Ott came off the bench to add 13.

The Bees raced to a 38-25 halftime lead, but Marquette rallied to trim the margin to 58-51 early in the final quarter.

Bridgman then scored 18 straight points and the game was never in doubt after that. In the final quarter the Bees hit 11 straight charity tosses at one stage.

"I was real pleased with the way we adopted to the pressure of the game in the fourth quarter when they cut the lead to seven," Bridgman coach Doug Hendricks said.

Bridgman connected on 50 of 62 for 48 per cent. Marquette found the range on only 23 of 73 for 32 per cent.

Comeback Falls Short For Hawks

FENNVILLE — Coach Larry Morse of Fennville saw what a two-week layoff can do to a basketball team here Saturday night.

Fennville staged a comeback which fell just short as the Blackhawks lost to Saugatuck 64-62 in an Allegan-Ottawa contest.

"This is the first game in two weeks for us," moaned Morse. "And the layoff showed. We missed lots of easy, easy shots. They just couldn't put them down."

The game was nip and tuck all the way with the Indians holding an 18-16 lead after the first quarter and a 34-30 margin at the half. Fennville came back to lead 49-48 after three quarters.

The Indians eventually led by five with 11 seconds left in the game, but the Blackhawks hit a basket to cut it to three and then stole the inbounds pass and almost made the hoop which would have cut the lead to two.

But the ball wouldn't fall and Jim Scudder got the rebound with just seconds left and was fouled. He hit one free throw to bring them to there final margin.

Scudder ended the game with 21 points while Terry Morse added 10. Jeff Mizer and Joe White each had 16 for Saugatuck.

Both teams now own identical 1-3 league and 5-9 overall records.

Fennville was 24 of 72 from the field (33.3 per cent) and the Blackhawks also pulled down 33 rebounds. Curt Bale led the team with nine.

Fennville did win the junior varsity and freshman games.

Friars Waste Time And Lose

From Associated Press

From now on, the Providence Friars will have to make better use of their time.

They had nearly a whole minute Sunday, but didn't do anything positive with it.

Bruce Campbell missed a 15-foot shot with 32 seconds left. Bob Misevicius missfired with 12 seconds remaining and then Providence threw the ball away on an inbounds pass with three seconds on the clock.

This wasted effort added up to a 68-64 loss at Louisville in a battle of nationally-ranked college basketball powers.

"When you play a team as good as Louisville in Louisville," said Coach Dave Gavitt of the 13th-ranked Friars, "you have to play extremely well to win. I have no complaints about the officiating. I think we lost to a good team."

Except for the final minute, Providence made every second count against the ninth-ranked Cardinals. The Friars trailed at one time by 17 points before making a comeback that eventually wiped out the mountainous Louisville lead.

"We played so hard we nearly ran out of gas," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "No doubt about it. We were tired. I thought after Providence caught up that they got a little tired also. Then, it was up and back the rest of the way."

In another important game Sunday, the 12th-ranked Cincinnati Bearcats upset No. 6 Marquette 63-62.

In Saturday's action, top-ranked San Francisco defeated Nevada-Reno 98-81, second-ranked UCLA turned back Washington State 72-59, third-rated Kentucky routed Vanderbilt 113-73; fourth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas nipped Rutgers 89-88; fifth-ranked Wake Forest outscored Virginia 80-72; No. 7 Michigan walloped Ohio State 93-72; No. 8 Alabama stopped LSU 77-70 in overtime; No. 9 Louisville clobbered Memphis State 111-92, and 10th-ranked Minnesota hammered Northwestern 96-61.

Tennessee the country's No. 11 team, turned back Auburn 93-83; No. 14 North Carolina whipped Furman 88-71; No. 15 Arkansas nipped Houston 92-90; 17th-ranked Syracuse burned Northeastern 120-79; Illinois upset 18th-ranked Purdue 71-70 and No. 19 Arizona whipped Arizona State 90-81.

Before the Friars misused their last minute, freshman Darrell Griffith sank two free throws for Louisville to provide the Cardinals with their ultimate winning points. Griffith then hit a driving slam dunk at the buzzer for the final score.

Powered by Mike Jones' 20 points, Cincinnati held off Marquette and extended the nation's longest home-court winning streak to 57 games. The loss snapped Marquette's 10-game winning streak and provided Coach Gale Catlett with his 100th victory at Cincinnati in five years.

The Bearcats almost blew a nine-point lead with three minutes remaining. But Marquette guard Butch Lee passed a shot at the buzzer.

Marlon Redmond and Winford Boynes combined for 50 points to lead San Francisco past Nevada-Reno. The victory improved the country's best record to 21-0 and virtually locked up the West Coast Athletic Conference race for the powerful Dons.

David Greenwood and Roy Hamilton each scored 18 points in UCLA's victory. Frustrated inside by Washington State's big front line, the Bruins took their scoring outside with Hamilton and backcourt mate Jimmy Spillane hitting bombs. Spillane's sharpshooting netted 14 points.

Mike Phillips paced a high-powered Kentucky attack with 24 points to lead the Wildcats to a runaway Southeastern Conference victory over Vanderbilt. Jack Givens added 21 points, Larry Johnson 19, Rick Robey 18 and freshman Chuck Taylor 10 to the awesome Kentucky offense.

Robert Smith scored 16 points, including the winning jump shot with 10 seconds left, as Nevada-Las Vegas survived a scare from Rutgers. Rod Griffin triggered two scoring bursts in the second half to lead Wake Forest past Atlantic Coast Conference rival Virginia.

T.R. Dunn scored eight points in overtime to help Alabama beat LSU; Louisville beat Memphis State behind Rick Wilson's 17 points; Michael Thompson's 19 points helped Minnesota defeat Northwestern; Bernard King and Reggie Johnson scored 24 points each as Tennessee beat Auburn; Walter Davis' 25 points led North Carolina past Furman; Arkansas defeated Houston behind Marvin Delph's 24 points.

Big Layoff Fatal For Chief Cagers

DOWAGIAC — A two-week layoff took its toll on Dowagiac here Saturday night.

Mishawaka Marian raced out to a 16-4 lead in the first five minutes and held on for a 78-71 non-league basketball win over the Chieftains.

The win was only the third in 14 games for Marian, while Dowagiac fell to 3-9.

"We were flat in the first five minutes," Dowagiac coach Larry Crandall said. "We were never able to get over that hump psychologically after that."

After the first quarter Dowagiac could get no closer than four.

Kim Mulder and Larry McLaughlin were the Chieftain standouts. McLaughlin scored a season-high 28 points, while Mulder chipped in with 25 points and 21 rebounds. Jeff Mullen also hit double digits for Dowagiac with 12.

Smith Stops Black Hawks

Huge Crowd Sees Wings Clip Canucks

From Associated Press

The last time the Minnesota North Stars had won a game in Chicago, goalie Gary Smith and defenseman Bill White were Black Hawks teammates.

Now things are different. Smith tends goal for the Minnesota North Stars and White is the Black Hawks coach. Sunday night, Smith blanked his former team 3-0, giving the North Stars their first triumph at Chicago Stadium since 1972.

Smith stopped 38 Chicago shots. White noted, "We couldn't buy a goal," but that was because Smith wasn't selling any.

"He was the difference," said North Stars Coach Ted Harris. "Smith played super."

While Smith was playing "super," Bill Fairbairn opened the scoring for Minnesota with a shorthanded goal at 1:36 of the first period. Steve Jensen added his 12th goal of the season 15 minutes later, and defenseman Dennis O'Brien completed the scoring at 16:17 of the middle period.

That produced the goals, and Smith prevented them. He faced 38 shots, and stopped them all. "But the guys in front of me played well," said Smith. "Sure, they hit me with a few shots."

In the other NHL games Sunday night, rookie Doug Soetaert recorded the first shutout of his career as the New York Rangers beat the New York Islanders 4-0; the Boston Bruins defeated the Washington Capitals 5-2, the Colorado Rockies downed the Pittsburgh Penguins 5-2, and the Detroit Red Wings beat the Vancouver Canucks 3-2.

Phil Esposito scored one goal and set up another in a three-goal Rangers first period while Soetaert stopped 36 shots as the Rangers beat the Islanders in recording their first triumph in 10 tries this season against a team in their Lester Patrick Division.

The Rangers' triumph was marred by the loss of defenseman Dave Maloney, who suffered a deep skate cut on his left wrist and will be lost for an undetermined length of time.

Boston center Peter McNab, son of Washington General Manager Max McNab, scored his 34th and 35th goals of the season and rookie Stan Jonathan added two more, carrying the Bruins past the Capitals. Gerry Meehan scored twice for Washington.

Wilf Paiement scored three goals, including a shorthanded tally, bringing Colorado back from a 2-0 deficit and gaining a 41-save performance by Pittsburgh goalie Denis Herron.

Robinson Signs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Robinson, who played five positions last season for the Pittsburgh Pirates, has signed his 1977 contract, the team announced Sunday.

Robinson played all three outfield positions, as well as first base and third base last season. He batted .303 with 21 homers and 64 runs batted in.

Broncos Earn Share Of League Lead

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Toledo shook its old habit of blowing big leads and, as a result, has thrown the Mid-American Conference basketball lead into a three-way tie.

"We sputtered at the end, but we hung tough," said Coach Bob Nichols after his Rockets (4-4) breathed new life into their contending status with a 72-68 ambush of the Miami Redskins.

Nichols no doubt was recalling two road setbacks when Toledo squandered second half leads of 13 and 11 points at Bowling Green and Northern Illinois.

Miami's setback, its second in eight MAC starts, afforded Northern Illinois and defending champion Western Michigan the opportunity to create the first-place deadlock.

Matt Hicks once again saved the Huskies. His performance of 38 points, 12 points and a key tipin with 21 seconds left stamped an 83-77 setback on Ball State.

The Broncos, beaten at home earlier in the race by Miami, pulled even by keeping host Eastern Michigan winless 56-53.

Central Michigan surged to within one-half game of the leading trio at 5-2. Ben Poquette's 20 points and 14 rebounds pacing a 97-76 rout of Kent State.

Bowling Green's championship took a dip when Ohio University stunned the Falcons at home 69-68 in overtime. The Falcons (4-3) missed a bid to move with one-half game of the lead when Bucky Walden sank two free throws with three seconds left.

Miami had a chance at a 70-70 tie, but couldn't come up with the rebound when Brian Bays missed his second free throw with three seconds to play last-head. Dave Specher seized the rebound for the Rockets and was fouled, converting both his foul shots for a game-high 27.

Darrell Hedric, Miami's coach, was philosophical over the road loss. "I've been in too many races to worry about one game," he said. "We'll take them one at a time."

Miami lost an early 12-point lead and Hedric said, "We played 15 minutes of good basketball, then five minutes of bad basketball."

Slow Porsche Carrera Wins 24 Hours Of Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "I may be slow, but I'm ahead of you."

The motto of the Ecurie Escargot Porsche applied to everyone at the finish of the 24 Hours of Daytona.

When the checkered flag dropped at 3 p.m. Sunday the Ecurie Escargot entry was about 10 miles ahead its nearest challenger, and its members had a good chuckle over their little inside joke.

What is Ecurie Escargot?

Actually, explains Dave Helmick, one of the three winning co-drivers, it was his idea for a racing club name that he came up with while serving in the military.

"It's French," said the bearded Miami doctor. "Roughly, ecurie is team. Escargot means snail.

"Team Snail — I may be slow, but I'm ahead of you."

The "slow" Porsche that Helmick, three-time winner Hurley Haywood and John Graves drove to victory gave up plenty of horsepower to the speedy Porsche 935 turbos and the Inalfera prototypes — in fact to just about everybody.

But when it came to endurance, the name of the game really, the supposedly obsolete Porsche Carrera was without peer.

The team covered 2,615 miles at an average of nearly 109 miles an hour.

Faster cars led the event until barely three hours remained. But reliability was not their strong suit.

Leaders for most of the race were Reinhold Joest of Germany and Frenchman Bob Wollek in a Porsche 935. Nagging problems with a left front wheel finally forced them to make a agonizing 17-minute pit stop for repairs, and their lead slipped away for keeps. They finished a distant third behind Italians Martino Finotto and Carlo Facetti in a Porsche 935.

Peter Gregg and his new codriver Jim Busby challenged the Joest-Wollek car between midnight and 3 a.m. Sunday, but a three-hour stop to rebuild their transmission later cost them 100 laps.

McClinton Big LMC Spark Plug

The Benton Harbor native got the sluggish Indians moving in the second half as LMC posted a 104-84 victory over Kellogg Community College at the Napier Gym in a Western Collegiate Conference basketball game.

LMC trailed 47-41 at the half, but roared back to outscore Kellogg 63-37 in the last stanza to win the contest going away.

"Ray came in and really picked us up," beamed Indians' head coach Lou Harvey. "He's a good scrapper...he got us moving.

"We were a little flat in the first half and I couldn't figure out why," Harvey stated. "But he came in and did the job."

Greg Cole led 14-8 Indians, who are leading the league with a 9-0 record, scoring 32 points. Jerry McClinton added 23, Fred Walker netted 20 and Bob Walker scored 11.

Doug Herring and Ben Gray each notched 20 points for Kellogg. Greg Butzlerus and Larry Gilbert each chipped in with 14 points.

This is the sixth win in a row for LMC, sure. Dec. 15, the Indians have posted a 9-2 record.

Garner Paces Niles Past Holland, 64-60

HOLLAND — Tim Garner hit double figures for the 12th straight game and led all scorers with 21 points while pacing Niles to a 64-60 Big Seven basketball victory over Holland here Saturday night.

Kevin Seitz and Tom Donley added 12 and 11 points, respectively, as Niles remained second in the conference at 6-2. The Vikings, who host St. Joseph Tuesday night, are 10-3 overall.

Holland, now 1-7 in the Big Seven and 2-11 on the season, got 19 points from Dan Molenaar, 12 from Steve DeVette and 10 from Chuck Bultsma.

Niles was in command all the way with leads of 11-3 after the first quarter, 32-27 at halftime and 48-40 after three periods.

"It was a funny game," declared Niles coach Dean Adams. "We had streaks and would go out and get a nice 10 point lead. We would then coast a little bit and they would come back."

Niles made 50 per cent of its field goals, including six of eight by Seitz and five of eight by Donley. The Vikings also hit on six of seven free throws. Holland stayed in the game by making 18 of 26 at the lines.

Niles posted a 44 to 26 rebounding advantage.

LMC Gals Post Big Win

The Lake Michigan College girls basketball team which downed Kellogg 64-47 over the weekend, has a tough home game at 5:45 p.m. today against Grand Rapids Junior College.

Linda Boyd scored 14 and Sheri Johnson 12 while pacing the victory over Kellogg which lifted LMC to 7-2 overall. It was the first league game for the Indians.

Boyd also led the winners in rebounds with 14. Mary Singleton added 10.

There were times we moved the ball the best we have so far this year on offense," declared LMC coach Laz Miller. "We had the fewest number of turnovers this game also, especially in the first half when we only turned the ball over two times."

LMC led 35-19 at halftime.

Current Events Draws Comment

Development program administration and planning budgets. It may help while away some of these cold winter days.

5. I requested a breakdown of the proposed 3rd year budget, especially as it relates to administration, planning and management, and a copy of the final, Benton township trustee approved, 3rd year application, prior to its submission to the A-95 review, both were promised. This was requested publicly, as information requested 12-21-76 and 1-18-77 by CDAC, asking for specific budget breakdowns, still has not been complied with.

You can bet that I'll continue questioning expenditures of public monies made available for the benefit of our local community, and its citizens, as enacted by Congress, and covered in the federal guidelines. I only wish that more citizens became interested in their local government, and either help good elected officials do an even better job, or replace them pronto, schnell, quickly, tout de suite, or whatever.

I hope that you'll continue sending your reporters out to cover these meetings, for which I'll thank you in advance, but do try to get all the information, and analyze it, and print it correctly.

I would appreciate it, if you would call atention in your paper to the 2nd public hearing, scheduled for 2-8-77 at 7:30 P.M. at the Benton township hall, so that any interested citizen, who missed the first meeting, or was prevented by the weather, can attend and inform him or herself.

Cecilia Burke
CDAC Secretary

SHE'S CRITICAL OF OBITUARY

Editor,

I am glad to know that I am not the only one that's blood boiled after reading the Jan. 22 edition of a young man's death in your paper, as I am sure it did many others. I have never read such a depressed obituary in my life.

I sent a poem to the Editor last summer to share with the readers of your paper because it seemed to fit these times of ours and maybe let us think twice before we complain. But you sent it back telling me you don't print poems. I'll just bet the readers of your paper would have rather read my poem than your Jan. 22 obituary of that most misfortunate young man.

Editor,

I read Marcia Williams letter of complaint concerning the obituary column.

She expressed my sentiments 100 per cent and did a great job of it.

NEWS SELECTION CALLED INJUSTICE

Editor,

On the front page of the Feb. 2nd issue of the Herald-Palladium you carried a report of fraud by a Mr. Herzog. It was accompanied by the headline "Chiseler Owned $200,000 In Stock", and a picture of Mr. Herzog.

The following day you carried an important message by the President of the U.S. on page 8.

I do not know Mr. Herzog nor do I condone what he did. I do believe you did this man an injustice.

PROF PRAISES H-P AD MAN'S PRESENTATION

Editor,

Several weeks ago Mr. Gary McCormick, of The Herald-Palladium classified advertising department, at my request was kind enough to deliver a lecture on the subject of "Classified Advertising: What It Is and What It Can Do for American Daily Newspapers."

The lecture, amply illustrated, was given to the Lake Michigan College journalism department's Introduction to Advertising class, and I would like you to know that Mr. McCormick's lecture was as well received as it was well delivered.

From time to time I have asked members of The Herald-Palladium news and advertising staffs to address various journalism classes, and not once have I ever been disappointed in their presentations. Mr. McCormick's presentation a few weeks ago was no exception to that general rule. It was well done and to the point.

I am particularly pleased at the readiness with which your staff members respond to requests to address LMC journalism classes. Such responses are gratifying to me, personally as well as professionally.

College Test Dates Named

LANSING — High school juniors who want to compete for state scholarships that will be awarded for the 1978-79 school year have until March 7 to register for the first of three qualifying examinations, the State Board of Education said today.

The American College Test (ACT) is the designated examination for the State of Michigan Scholarship. Registration for the ACT is possible at every high school in the state. The first examination for high school juniors planning to enter college in the fall of 1978 will be given April 2, according to State Superintendent of Public Instruction John W. Porter.

The other examinations will be given on June 18 and Oct. 8. A student needs to take only one of the three examinations, Dr. Porter said.

The State Superintendent said approximately 45,000 Michigan high school juniors are expected to take one of the three examinations.

"Participation in this examination is the first step in the process of selecting state scholarship recipients," Dr. Porter said. "State Scholarships, awarded on the basis of need, may be in amounts of up to $1,200 a year and may be used at any of Michigan's some 100 institutions of higher learning."

During the present academic year, more than 17,000 Michigan students are receiving approximately $13 million under the scholarship program, the state superintendent said.

Students desiring to take the April 2 test can obtain registration forms from their principal or counselor, Dr. Porter said.

Rose Shortage Crimping Valentine's Day Tradition

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

If you're thinking of sending your true love a dozen, long-stemmed red roses for Valentine's Day next week, forget it.

The traditionally romantic flowers — never in abundant supply in February — are scarcer and more expensive than ever this year because of the cold wave that has snarled industry, agriculture and everyday life for millions.

The Society of American Florists says that the freeze in Florida, the lack of sunshine and the shortage of natural gas to heat greenhouses has limited stocks of several other blossoms, including pompons and baby's breath, used in bouquets.

The roses you do find will cost you dearly. At Jay's Flowers in New York City, longstemmed red roses will cost $2.50 each this year — $30 a dozen. The same flowers last year cost $2 apiece.

Another New York florist, explaining that the term longstemmed is used for flowers with stems ranging from 20 to 32 inches, said a dozen red roses will run anywhere from $24 to $36, up 15 to 20 per cent from last year.

The florists' group said its members aren't even pushing roses this year. Instead, they are telling customers to stick to spring flowers such as tulips or daffodils, or settle for a mixed bouquet. There is a fair supply of small roses, but red blossoms may be scarce.

Carnations — grown in Colorado where ski resort operators are bemoaning the lack of snow — are abundant this year, but if you live in the East, you'll pay more because of shipping costs.

Valentine's Day means big business for florists. "It's the largest single-day sale of flowers," said a spokesman for Plaza Florists in New York. He urged consumers to check with local florists to find out which blossoms are readily available. "The closer to the supply, the better," he said.

The romantic holiday also is an important one for candy and card sellers. A spokesman for the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers in Arlington, Va., said Valentine's Day is the second biggest holiday of the year for the industry, behind Christmas.

No one knows exactly how many Valentines are sent every year, but Harry J. Cooper, executive director of the association, said the total was in the millions. Cooper said sentimental cards are back and he said prices are about the same as last year. The cost of individual cards ranges from 25 cents to $4 and $5 for the more elaborate varieties, he said.

Norm Rowland of Hallmark Cards in Kansas City said the average price of his company's cards is 51 cents, a couple pennies more than last year. He said people seem to want the more expensive cards; retailers report that leftover stocks from last year are generally of the cheaper varieties.

The company's most expensive card is $5. "It's got about everything you can think of," said Rowland. "It's big, with lace, a combination gift and Valentine."

But the kids who want to give Valentines to everyone in the class have not been priced out of the market. Like most companies, Hallmark sells packets of simple Valentines — 45 cards for 98 cents.

What's the best-selling sentiment? "Love is the most popular," said Rowland. "One way or another, that's got to be worked in there."

If you've ruled out roses and want something more than a card, there's always candy. But it too will cost you more if you pick anything with chocolate, since prices for cocoa beans have been soaring, offsetting decreases in the cost of sugar.

A spokesman for the National Confectioners Association in Chicago said that a check of candy companies showed a one-pound assortment of chocolates in the traditional red satin box averages about $5.50 to $5.75 this year. Last year, the range was $5 to $5.50.

Wrapping counts. One company reported a one-pound box of chocolates ranged from $4.50 to $6.75, all depending on the trimmings on the package.

Vantage perfects low-tar 100's.

Introducing Vantage Longs.

You may not have known it, but those extra long 100's that so many smokers find popular are usually extra long in tar.

And that means they couldn't be Vantage. Because Vantage was made for smokers who wanted a cigarette that was low in tar and high in flavor.

So we resisted the trend. Until we could perfect a 100 with the famous Vantage combination of full flavor and low tar.

Well, we've done it. In new Vantage Longs. A blend of flavor-rich tobaccos with tar levels held down to the point where good taste still comes through.

That's the Vantage point. And that's the point of Vantage Longs. There's never been a 100 quite like it.

Paw Paw Man Wins Utility Battle

BY DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — Don't try to tell Ted Plaszczak that the average person can't fight the system.

Last March, Plaszczak, a local businessman, led a car caravan to Lansing to protest a $10.2 million rate hike being sought by the General Telephone company before the state Public Service commission (PSC).

"We must have been told a thousand times that you can't beat the utilities," he recalled.

Last week the efforts of Plaszczak and the group he helped form, the Michigan Association for the Preservation of Utility Services, apparently paid off. The PSC not only denied the $10.2 million hike, but ordered General Telephone to reduce is rates by $2.3 million.

The firm serves most of Van Buren county as well as parts of Cass and Allegan counties.

Borrowing from a Bicentennial theme, Plaszczak likened the the rate hike fight to the American revolution.

"We were feeling the same surge of emotion that was felt by our revolutionary forces," he said. "We figured that if they could fight a war of oppression 200 years ago, we could gather together and do the same thing now."

Plaszczak said he got involved in the rate fight because he felt prices were climbing to the point that some consumers would soon not be able to afford a phone.

"Utilities were formed to give service to people at the least possible cost, but somehow things got turned around so that they are functioning to make the most profit," he said.

General Telephone had asked for the increase in order to bring its profits up to a state authorized level of 8.9 per cent. By doing so, Plaszczak contended, the company is no longer a public utility, but an investment corporation, and should be required to pay taxes and for easements as do other corporations.

Plaszczak said fighting the utilities is difficult, beca use they are able to hire batteries of lawyers, and then pass the costs back to the consumer in the form of higher rates.

He recalled that at the Lansing hearing, the Paw Paw group was the only consumer group represented, while the phone company came prepared with literally hundreds of pages of facts and figures.

Still, Plaszczak said, the PSC seemed very receptive to his group.

"They acted as if they were glad to have someone there for a change besides all the lawyers for General Telephone," he said. "They listened to what we said, realizing it was just some common people for a change."

Plaszczak said he was able to point out what he called several misrepresentations in the company's figures. He said he believes that one of the major problems in rate cases is that the PSC does not have the staff to completely analyze the mounds of paper work submitted by utilities in support of their requests.

Eric Schneidewind, an official of the PSC's policy division, said it would be difficult to assess the specific impact the Paw Paw group might have had on the commission's decision in the General Telephone case. But he added that the only evidence the PSC considers is that which is delivered at the hearings. In that sense, individuals can have a real impact, he said.

In the meantime, Plaszczak said he plans to go on fighting utility increases whenever he feels they are unwarranted.

"We have to realize that special interest groups work 24 hours a day to influence the bureaucrats," he said. "And that is the greatest malignancy in our government today."

Farmers Suffer Second Die-Off

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

CEDAR SPRINGS, Mich. (AP) — When this 90-year-old farm was young, the dairy cows on it were as good as any in Kent County.

George Lemunyon, born and raised here, kept up the family tradition. But in the past three years Lemunyon has twice seen his once-healthy Holsteins die for reasons beyond his control.

After decades of profitable dairying, Lemunyon, with the stamina of the Biblical Job, finds himself perhaps $400,000 in debt and wondering when — and if — he can begin a third time.

"Righteousness will prevail," he says. "It will make us stronger men."

His first 332-animal herd was wiped out in 1975 by polybrominated biphenyl or PBB, a toxic fire retardant chemical accidentally mixed with Michigan livestock feed in 1973. That grief — worsened by some bizarre human maladies — was shared with hundreds of other Michigan farmers whose poisoned herds also were slaughtered and buried.

But now the 67-year-old bachelor is enduring a second, more solitary tribulation. His second herd is dying while government officials ponder the cause.

The chilling possibility is that it's another chemical.

"The one fact is that George Lemunyon and that farm out there have suffered immense, severe and catastrophic problems. And I don't think it's his fault," says John March, Lemunyon's attorney in nearby Grand Rapids.

Although the animals have the same dull eyes, listlessness, stiff joints and running sores as PBB-tainted herds, officials know PBB is not the culprit this time.

Ironically, most experts suspect the new $165,000 barn Lemunyon built for his second herd. In the blood of Lemunyon's cows they have found significant levels of pentachlorophenol, or PCP, a toxic chemical used to preserve the wood in the enclosed barn.

They speculate that constant exposure to PCP — breathing it, licking it and rubbing against it — may be making Lemunyon's cows grow ill and die.

March is working to trace the PCP to its source and possibly sue to recover his client's losses.

More than a dozen animals, including a 2,200-pound bull and several shriveled calves lie in Lemunyon's yard, stiff and snow-covered because they can't be buried in the frozen earth. Another 80 animals that died in 1976 are buried over the hill beyond his barn.

"The kids used to go out and put up little sticks for a cross but there got to be so many of them that they couldn't get sticks fast enough," says Lemunyon through the few teeth left in his mouth.

Once 204 healthy animals, his herd now has dwindled to almost 100. The state quarantined it in mid-January, meaning he can sell neither the meat nor the milk, which runs out slowly, yellowed and sometimes clotted like cottage cheese.

"We're working for nothing right now," says Bernie Drent, 36-year-old father of three and Lemunyon's partner for the past 20 years. "We put in a lot of long hours for nothing."

Besides the emotional and financial strain of spending $300 daily to feed a worthless herd, Lemunyon and the Drents also are suffering from physical ailments that doctors tentatively have linked with PBB.

Lemunyon says he feels worse than he did three years ago, but won't elaborate. Yet he nimbly scales fences on his farm and appears younger than his years.

But Drent no longer can drive alone to Grand Rapids, 20 miles away. "I get lost, and I black out," he says slowly. "I smashed up a combine in 1975."

His 12-year-old son, Bernard Jr., was in a mysterious coma for a week last summer. And 15-year-old Peter, once an honor student, is failing his classes and must nap for hours during the day.

"George has really hung onto this thing trying to find out what the heck goes," says Dr. Lawrence Schalk, his veterinarian. "How, I don't know. Most guys would have thrown up their hands."

For the five of them, it was bad enough in 1974 when the first herd began dropping off. But the problem was pinpointed quickly and nearly 300 cows which had not already died were carted away and buried.

The Michigan Farm Bureau, which mixed the toxic feed, paid Lemunyon $307,401 for his losses. "We were told afterwards that we should have gotten more. But we're not people out to gouge anyone," he says.

A month after his first herd was slaughtered, Lemunyon's two main barns burned to the ground. So he spent his settlement for a new herd and a new barn.

But now, state and federal officials say the wood treatment throughout the barn may have been too much for his cows. The barn includes more treated wood than most and his cows rarely leave it for fresh air, officials say.

Produced for decades, the PCP used to treat the lumber is not generally believed hazardous, although warnings caution good ventilation is needed.

Dr. John Moore, who is studying Lemunyon's herd for the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences, says pure PCP in itself is not likely to be the problem. The illness could be caused by impurities in the chemical, he says.

With no income, things are getting more difficult on the farm. Less than $500 is left in the bank, the partners say. They may have to begin cashing their stocks and selling machinery or maple trees that have been on the farm for years.

Both dairymen say they cannot keep working much longer at a dying cause. Maybe, they say, someone will be hired to shoot the cows unless the state relieves them of the financial and emotional burden.

As for going back in business again with a third herd, Drent says life's too short and he's too discouraged.

But not George Lemunyon. "Sure, we're going to start over again if we can. We hope to," he says.

"We're terribly hurt, but we're not bitter. I'm sure you know what the Bible says — turn the other cheek and proceed."

HERD SLOWLY DYING: George Lemunyon, 67, looks at several cows that died in his herd recently, the second such occurrence since 1975. He is losing his second herd of Holsteins. Officials fear the chemically-treated wood in his new barn (background) is the culprit. (AP Wirephoto)

Any person who has an interest which may be adversely affected by the issuance of the permit may request a public hearing. The request must be submitted in writing to the district engineer within 30 days after Jan. 25, clearly setting forth the interest which may be affected.

Objections or views related to the proposed constructconstruction should be also filed with the district engineer, Detroit District, Corps of Engineers, P.O. Box 1027, Detroit, Mich., 48231.

Flag Day Chairman Elected

THREE OAKS — There will be a Flag Day in Three Oaks this year as usual, but the event, billed as the nation's single biggest flag day observance, will have a new sponsor.

For the past 23 years, the Three Oaks American Legion post has sponsored flag Day but this year asked for help from the community in sponsoring the June event that has grown too big in terms of manpower to handle and money to finance, according to a legion spokesman.

Consequently, at a recent organizational meeting, representatives of Three Oaks area civic and governmental groups elected Bryan Volstorf as acting chairman for the 1977 Flag Day, a spokesman for the group said.

The new sponsoring group is slated to meet next on March 1, at 8 p.m., at the legion hall.

Housewives Recruiting Executives

DETROIT (AP) — Three housewives from exclusive Grosse Pointe are trying to get business executives from other parts of the country to come to work in Detroit.

The women offer a program called "Detroit Awareness." It consists of giving potential executives for Detroit area firms a tour of the city and a two-hour running commentary for $30 on the good points of a city with a bad image.

"People have the wrong image of our city," said one of the three, Joan Halter. "Detroit is a good place to live. We've got about everything here that they have anywhere else."

The three housewives hope to build their idea into a full-time business. The women hope to be hired by companies to sell the good points of the city to executives who are considering going to work in the Detroit area.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Advance Modestly

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced moderately today, adding to last Friday's scattered gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose about half a point in the early going. Gainers took a 3-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the uptrend stemmed from a technical reaction to the five-week decline that began at New Year's, in which the Dow lost 56.76 points.

Today's prices included American Motors, unchanged at 4⅛; International Harvester, up ¼ at 33; National Semi-conductor, down ¼ at 19¾, and Aetna Life & Casualty, unchanged at 30¾.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average posted a .75 gain to 947.89.

That left the average with a 9.64 loss for the week and a net decline of 56.76 since New Year's.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about a 7-5 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 23.13 million shares, against 23.79 million on Thursday.

The NYSE's composite index added .04 to 55.46.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .36 at 112.95.

Galien Twp. Shifts Site Of Meeting

GALIEN — The Galien township board meeting scheduled for Tuesday night in the township hall will be held instead in the fire station, according to township officials.

The meeting place was changed because township officials said they are expecting a large turnout for a discussion on a proposed sewer system that would serve the village of Galien and some township homes.

The meeting starts at 7:30 p.m.

Rockwell-UAW Talks Falter

TROY, Mich. (AP) — Negotiations between Rockwell International Corp. and the striking United Auto Workers Union were broken off Sunday, with no new talks scheduled.

Some 6,000 workers at 11 automotive operations plants in six states went on strike at midnight Friday when the old three-year labor contract expired.

Struck plants are in Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Kentucky. Issues in dispute were not disclosed.

AUTHOR DIES

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Davis Dresser, who wrote the Michael Shayne detective novels under the name Brett Halliday, died of cancer Friday. He was 72.

Pair Face Charges Of Break-In

NILES — State police here said they arrested a 15-year-old South Bend, Ind., girl and a South Bend woman Saturday afternoon on charges of breaking and entering after two people were apprehended inside a Niles township home.

Brenda Conrad, 19, was lodged in the Berrien county jail on a charge of breaking and entering and the girl was lodged in the county juvenile detention center, troopers said. She was to be petitioned into juvenile court.

Police reported the arrests came after two people were apprehended inside the Claude Havener residence on South Third street shortly before 4 p.m. Canned goods, estimated at $7 in value, had been removed, troopers said. The items were recovered, troopers reported.

Van Buren Delegates Can Attend

DECATUR — Any Van Buren Democrat precinct delegate elected during the Aug. 3 primary can attend this coming weekend's state party convention in Detroit, according to Leah Bennison, county party chairman.

Delegates to the state convention would have been elected at a Jan. 30 county party convention, but bad weather forced cancellation of the convention and prevented its rescheduling, Mrs. Bennison said.

She said Van Buren county is allowed 17 party delegates to the state convention, probably more than enough for Van Buren Democrats who will be able to go to Detroit.

Ex-Chicagoan New Gobles Police Chief

ALFRED TAGUE
New Gobles chief

GOBLES — A former Chicago police sergeant has been named acting police chief here, becoming this community's third police chief in the past month.

Alfred Tague, 55, 526 East Van Buren street, was named to the post on a two-month probationary period, according to Gobles Mayor Timothy Peters.

Peters said a decision would be made April 1 on whether Tague's appointment is to be made permanent. His salary will be $9,700 a year.

Tague replaces Michael Sweeney who resigned Jan. 27 to become a Niles police officer. Sweeney was named to the post Jan. 18 when Harold Beach resigned after a squabble with city officials over a set of rules which Beach claimed "would be impossible to follow." The rules were imposed in the wake of a citizen group's efforts to have him relieved of duty. Beach had been chief since 1961.

Tague will be the only full-time officer with the department. Two other officers work on a part-time basis. Tague came to Gobles in April, 1976, retiring as a sergeant after 24 years with the Chicago police department. His wife's name is Marion.

Two Men Accused Of Assault

UNION PIER — Two Indiana men were arrested about 2:30 a.m. yesterday here after they scuffled with an off-duty Berrien county sheriff's deputy and the owner of the Wayside Inn in the tavern parking lot on Red Arrow highway.

Wayne C. King, 19, of Merrillville, Ind., was arrested on charges of assault and battery and possession of marijuana. Thomas Nisevich, also 19, Crown Point, Ind., was arrested on charges of assault with a deadly weapon, and breaking and entering a motor vehicle.

Sheriff's deputy Michael Renkawitz said the struggle occurred after he and tavern owner Joseph Galloro spotted two men in Galloro's pickup truck about 2:30 a.m. and went to investigate.

The deputy said one of the two men allegedly pulled a knife on him after he identified himself as a police officer.

A small amount of suspected marijuana was confiscated when the two were lodged in the county jail, Renkawitz said.

TODAY'S WEATHER MAP: Cold weather continues today in the East. It's expected to be mild in the West. Rain is forecast for the Pacific Northwest, and snow flurries are expected for the Great Lakes. (AP Wirephoto)

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Police here said they arrested a Niles man Saturday morning after chasing a barefoot man for over a half mile in the snow.

Ronald Clubb, 17, of 2295 West Bertrand road, was arrested on a charge of larceny from a motor vehicle in connection with the alleged theft of a citizens' band radio.

Berrien Springs village-Oronoko township police said Clubb was treated at Berrien General hospital for frostbite on both feet and then released.

Patrolman James Kesterke said the arrest came after he had chased a man from the 2700 block of Willow drive while investigating a report that a CB radio had been taken from a pickup truck there.

Kesterke said the owner of the pick-up truck, James Muth, 2707 Willow drive, had followed footprints to a nearby house and as he (Kesterke) approached the house, a man began running away.

Kesterke said a CB radio was found in a plastic bag near the house.

Army Tests Plastic Gear

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The U.S. Army is testing helmets and vests made of a plastic used for tires that may become the latest in protective combat gear.

Ft. Benning's chief of testing predicts the gear will be standard GI equipment within two years.

The molded plastic, called Kelvar, is used to make a helmet resembling German headgear of World War II. It covers more of the ears than the current "steel pot," which has been used for the past 35 years without major modification.

The new vest, made of woven Kelvar, has a high collar to provide more protection than vests the Army now uses, said Col. Vincent J. Oddi, chief of material systems at Ft. Benning's development division.

U-M Prof Says 'Eye Language' Reveals Emotions

By ANNE GOLD

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — One could say Brett Seabury is interested in the face value of things.

Seabury, a University of Michigan professor of social work, regards individuals' facial expressions as instrumental to working with people.

"My interest," he says, "is in taking what others have done and making it useful in a profession that needs to know people's feelings."

Seabury explains that the study of faces is more than a century-old pursuit. The evolutionist Charles Darwin delved into the subject in an 1872 book, "The Expression of the Emotions in Man and Animals."

Darwin theorized that basic facial expressions are instinctive and not learned behavior.

The belief is not without its critics.

"Anthropologists may have difficulty accepting that facial expressions belong to our animal roots and not to ourselves," Seabury explains.

The natural reaction of the muscles and nerves in the face plus some cultural conditioning combine to express emotion, he says.

Seabury also explains that social rules may inhibit some types of expressions.

"In certain settings it is absolutely inappropriate to smile even if you're happy," he points out. Restrictions on the use of the face may very even from one family to another. Some households discourage sulleness or anger from being exhibited in the face, Seabury has found.

Seabury's work revolves around the refined recognition of six basic facial expressions: disgust, surprise, happiness, anger, sadness and fear.

More than one of these feelings can be shown simultaneously in a person's face, he says. For example, depending on the stimulus, a person can express a cross between surprise and disgust.

To complicate the situation further, persons may try to disguise their real feelings.

"I have to manage my face," Seabury admits. "It's not just a face, it's me."

The concept of "me-ness" is revealed in the face functions to different degrees in different cultures, he says. In our society, Seabury says, "our sense of being is very external."

In particular, individuals will manipulate their mouths to keep from showing how they feel.

"The mouth is the biggest liar," Seabury says.

But the big giveaway is in the eyes, he adds. The muscle groups surrounding the eyes are the "most difficult to control," he says.

Tests have been conducted, he says, to show that even eye pupils may change size to correspond to a certain emotion, but that change is difficult to detect.

But he is trying to attune himself and his students to paying particular attention to revealing eye changes that may constitute what Seabury calls a "leak" in a person's mask.

Bill Aims To Stretch Warranties

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Purchasers of products which spend a lot of time in the repair shop would get an extended warranty under a bill introduced in the state Senate.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. David Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, would require an additional warranty if the product continually needs repair.

"My bill would extend the warranty period on the goods to cover those instances where a substantial amount of the warranty duration has run out while the merchandise is being held for repair," Plawecki said.

Under the bill, the warranty would be extended by the number of days the goods are under repair when the repair period exceeds 10 days or exceeds 10 per cent of the number of days in the warranty period, whichever is less.

A product carrying a 30-day warranty and in the shop four days would receive an extra day of warranty. The bill passed the Senate last session, but died in the House.
